

Four children suffer reactions Officials exam McDonald Rd. wooded area

By AMY PETERSON

WILMINGTON - Not more than two weeks ago, four Wilmington youngsters were playing tag in the woods behind McDonald Road. Today, that same site is under intense investigation by a horde of examiners from the Environmental Protection Agency and the Wilmington Board of Health, after all four kids broke out in a mysterious rash which has left two boys in the intensive care unit at Children's Hospital in Boston.

The rash which has taken on the form of a bubbling burn-like appearance on the skin and area such as the nostrils and mouth, is believed to be a result of exposure to a mysterious toxin that is located somewhere within the area of where the four had been playing.

Thirteen year old Robert Swenson of Wilmington has taken the hardest hit from the puzzling plague. Currently, Swenson is being treated by doctors for complex vascular, neurological and muscular problems that onset shortly after the rash had been discovered. Apparently, Swenson, a student at the North Intermediate School, is so weakened by the effects of the mysterious exposure that he cannot even stand on his own without collapsing. Earlier in the week Swenson had been released from the hospital but was sent back after one of his teachers noticed that his arm, in a sling at the time, began to shake uncontrollably. When he returned to the hospital, doctors noticed that the rash had spread throughout his entire body. They also detected that several hundreds of his blood vessels had ruptured. After performing a spinal tap and several other neurological tests doctors concluded that Swenson's condition came a result of exposure to a toxic poison. Since the diagnosis, his condition has worsened.

Swenson's mother, Melinda Warren has become very concerned with her son's condition and told the Lowell Sun, "I don't know what's happening to my son. Every day something else goes wrong."

The other hospitalized boy, whose name has not been released, is currently in stable condition at Boston Children's Hospital. However, according to Greg Erickson, director of the Wilmington Board of Health, "The second child took a tour with us on Friday through the area and he had no rash at all. Now he is back in the hospital with the rash after the tour." This leads officials to believe that whatever the substance causing the rash is, it is present in that specific area.

The other two children have not reported any other distinct irregularities at this time.

So far, searches for toxic spills and hazardous materials have turned up empty. Erickson said, "We went a half mile through the woods where they had been playing and could not find anything." The EPA have also conducted searches in the area for drums and barrels - which are usually signs that toxins are present - but have also come up with nothing.

Investigators have looked into the fact that the area where the children were playing is located a half mile from the Rocco's Landfill. However, the state concluded about a year ago that the site would not endanger the health of the public, Erickson backed up the notion, "Rocco's is a long walk from where the kids were playing," he said.

New evidence indicates that suspicions are now arising upon the Canelas Landfill, better known to residents as

by ERIN DOWNING

It was standing room only as students and staff members from Massachusetts Institute of Technology presented to the Wilmington Planning Board the preliminary draft of the Lowell Street Corridor Concept Plan on Tuesday, November 18.

The plan reads, "This is a preliminary draft of the Lowell Street Corridor Plan which seeks to define development along the corridor - currently a mixture of residential, business, and industrial uses - for the next twenty years. It is composed of many major elements that the Planning Team feels should be addressed to help define the character of the corridor, protect residential land uses, and encourage business and retail land uses along Lowell Street."

Lowell Street was known a hundred years ago as "The New Road". The Lowell Street corridor was divided into five areas for the purpose of the study. Three of these areas occur at major intersections while the remaining two are the links between the intersections, according to the plan.

The plan proposes that areas at Route 38, Woburn Street, and West Street serve as the new commercial development locations in the "Commercial Village."

West Street should provide travel service and a commercial center for the residents and workers in Wilmington, according to the plan. "This area should also be the official welcome to the town as this is a major access point from I-93. Commercial development should be contained at this area to prevent the sprawl of business land use into the existing historical, residential fabric of the Corridor. The Burger King site should be the terminus of commercial development, preventing additional commercial encroachment into residential areas," reads the plan.

Video store plan revised

by ERIN DOWNING

A planned West Coast Video store continues to raise concerns of residents and Wilmington Planning Board members.

The revised site plan of the video store on the corner of Main Street and Clark Street was introduced by the manager of Methuen LLC, Robert Hubbard, at the Wilmington Planning Board meeting Tuesday, November 18.

At the Planning Board meeting October 2, plan architect David Jaquith presented a plan that had a one way entrance to the building from Main Street and an exit and entrance from Washington Avenue.

Numerous residents expressed their concerns about Washington Avenue being the main exit and entrance for the building.

The exit onto Washington Avenue remains a controversy for residents and board members.

A Washington Avenue resident voiced his concerns with the children's safety. "Children have no side walks and I'm concerned as a parent about more cars being in the area," stated the resident.

Another Washington Avenue resident restated the safety issue. "I have two small kids who take buses. There are enough problems with Clark Street already and now you're planning an in and out exit on Washington Ave. We already need sidewalks there now as it is. This video store is a big chain and more than 17 cars are going to be coming in and out of there. I'm very concerned about the kids in that area in the morning and afternoons," said the resident.

Chairman James DiOrio stated that he would rather see one Main Street entrance than a Washington Avenue entrance.

Property owner Domenic Tutela (a Wilmington resident) conveyed that they are restricted by the size of the lot as to where drive ways can be placed.

Hubard confirmed that the parking lot accommodates 17 cars with one handicapped accessible space.

Three employees are required to be in the store during work hours, according to Hubbard.

Hubard questioned whether or not to eliminate the Washington Avenue driveway from the plan. "Do I eliminate the driveway? Is this what we want to do? Are we arguing about something that we don't want to really do?" asked Hubbard.

A Washington Avenue resident responded by stating that the driveway is simply a danger because of the traffic.

Planning Director Lynn Duncan said that the planning board has limited jurisdiction over this concern. "We can deny the plan if the driveway was deemed by the town (of Wilmington) as not safe. We have limited jurisdiction. We only do site-plan reviews and the comments from the audience helps our decision," Duncan stated.

The issue has been continued for further discussion to December 16 at 8:15 p.m. at the Wilmington Town Hall.

Land re-zoning request By-law change defeated

By SEAN DEVLIN

WILMINGTON - A proposal to amend the town's zoning by-laws was shot down by concerned residents at Monday evening's Special Town Meeting.

The article, which was defeated by a 38 vote margin, called for the rezoning of a 23,097 square foot parcel of land owned by Lowell St. resident Kevin Brennan.

Brennan, who wishes to sell the property to a local physician inter-

Tewksbury Home invasion leads to arrests

by CHARLOTTE COOPER

TEWKSBURY - Tewksbury Police arrest three suspects involved in an assault at a Tewksbury residence.

On Thursday night, November 13th, Tewksbury Police responded to a 911 call for 14 Virginia Rd. When police arrived, they found 2 bloodied men who sustained injuries to the face and head after confronting two assailants in their garage.

Both men were first alerted to the suspect's presence when their dog began barking and behaving strangely near the garage door. One of the men entered the garage to investigate and was confronted by one of the assailants. The assailant, armed with a handgun, pointed it into the victim's ribs and demanded cash. The victim stepped back and was attacked. A second assailant emerged from another area of the garage and a struggle ensued between the three men. The second man, the victim's brother, heard the noises and ran into the garage where he was also assaulted by the suspects. The two suspects then fled in a vehicle that was driven by a third suspect.

The victim, who works at a gas station, recognized and identified one of the suspects from a previous police arrest. The suspect's photo was placed with seven other photos and picked

21st annual smoke-out

WILMINGTON - Thursday, November 20, is the 21st annual Great American Smokeout. During the smokeout, smokers are encouraged to put aside their cigarettes for the day in the hope that they will quit for good.

On this day, the Wilmington Tobacco Control Program and the Smoking Cessation Program for Winchester Hospital will have an information table in the main lobby of the Winchester Hospital Family Medical center in Wilmington. Staff will be available from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. to provide information about quitting for the day, and smoking cessation programs to help one quit for good.

One of the ways to avoid the urge to smoke, is to avoid places where other people will be smoking. At the information table, Smoke Free Dining Guides will be available. Hot off the presses, these guides list all restaurants in the towns of Wilmington, Winchester, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Lynnfield and Melrose that are smoke free.

After Thursday, dining guides will be available at the office of the Tobacco Control Program at Wilmington Town Hall, and through the Community Health Institute at Winchester Hospital. For additional information, contact the Wilmington Tobacco Control Program at 658-7228 or the Smoking Cessation Program at Winchester Hospital at 781-756-4705.

TAX-EXEMPT OR TAXABLE BONDS

What's a better investment: a corporate bond that pays 7.2 percent a year or a municipal bond yielding 5.1 percent? Municipal bonds historically pay a lower rate of interest than corporates, and the difference is made up by their tax-exempt status. The municipal bonds are not taxable by the federal government and, depending on the issue chosen, may be free of state and city taxes, too. The higher your tax bracket, the more useful a tax-exempt bond is. To compare taxable and tax-free bonds, divide the tax-free yield by 1 minus your federal tax bracket: in the 28 percent bracket, divide by 0.72; in the 31 percent bracket, divide by 0.69. The result is taxable-equivalent yield. If you're in the 28 percent bracket, that 5.1 percent tax-free yield is worth only 7.1 percent in a taxable instrument; the corporate bond's a better choice. In the 31 percent bracket, its value rises to 7.39, at the 39.6 percent bracket, to 8.4 percent. Need help with the number-crunching? That's our specialty at

Boston Oil Consumers Alliance reaches 15-year milestone Planning set for new programs, electrical co-op

BOSTON — As another heating season advance, the Boston Oil Consumers Alliance is celebrating 15 years of service to Boston communities including, Woburn, Winchester, Reading, Burlington, Wakefield, Stoneham, Tewksbury and Wilmington.

"We have saved millions of dollars for thousands of households and businesses on their fuel oil bill since 1983," said Director Barry Ingber.

Through BOAC's Fuel Co-operative, heating oil consumers save $150 to $200 each heating season.

Ingber estimated BOCA members will purchase over 5 million gallons of #2 Heating oil this heating season, saving over $900,000. Over its 15-year history, BOCA has saved its members over $8 million.

BOCA was created during the oil embargo of the early 1980s by former state Representative Mark Draisen.

A non-profit organization, BOCA's mission is to reduce the burden of energy costs on low- and moderate-income people in the Greater Boston area.

Incorporated in 1982, the fuel co-op started with 200 households and businesses. Today, 15 years later, BOCA has over 6,000 members, serves 159 communities, and contracts with 16 full-service oil dealers.

"Everyone who joins BOCA benefits," said Ingber. "Our Oil Bank provides free emergency heating oil to homes without heat, and BOCA's Energy Conservation Fund and Energy Conservation Vouchers support energy saving home improvements and weatherization."

Expanding into electricity

Trends in the home heating oil business, and the potential for deregulation of electrical utilities, are spurring BOCA's staff and board to evaluate new initiatives.

"Consumers are confronting significant change in the energy industry. Heating oil companies are consolidating and electricity will likely become an unregulated market," said Ingber.

"We need to ensure that small business and residential consumers, low- and moderate-income people and our co-op members secure fair prices and have consumer protections," he said.

To reach these goals, BOCA is heating up its policy and legislative program, and exploring expansion into electricity and other energy business ventures.

BOCA has launched a strategic planning process to start-up new co-operative ventures in electricity, and energy efficiency produces. Planning is underway for an electricity co-op for residential and small business consumers modeled on BOCA's successful Fuel Oil Co-op. "We want to guarantee the benefits of deregulation reach the average household and small business," Ingber said.

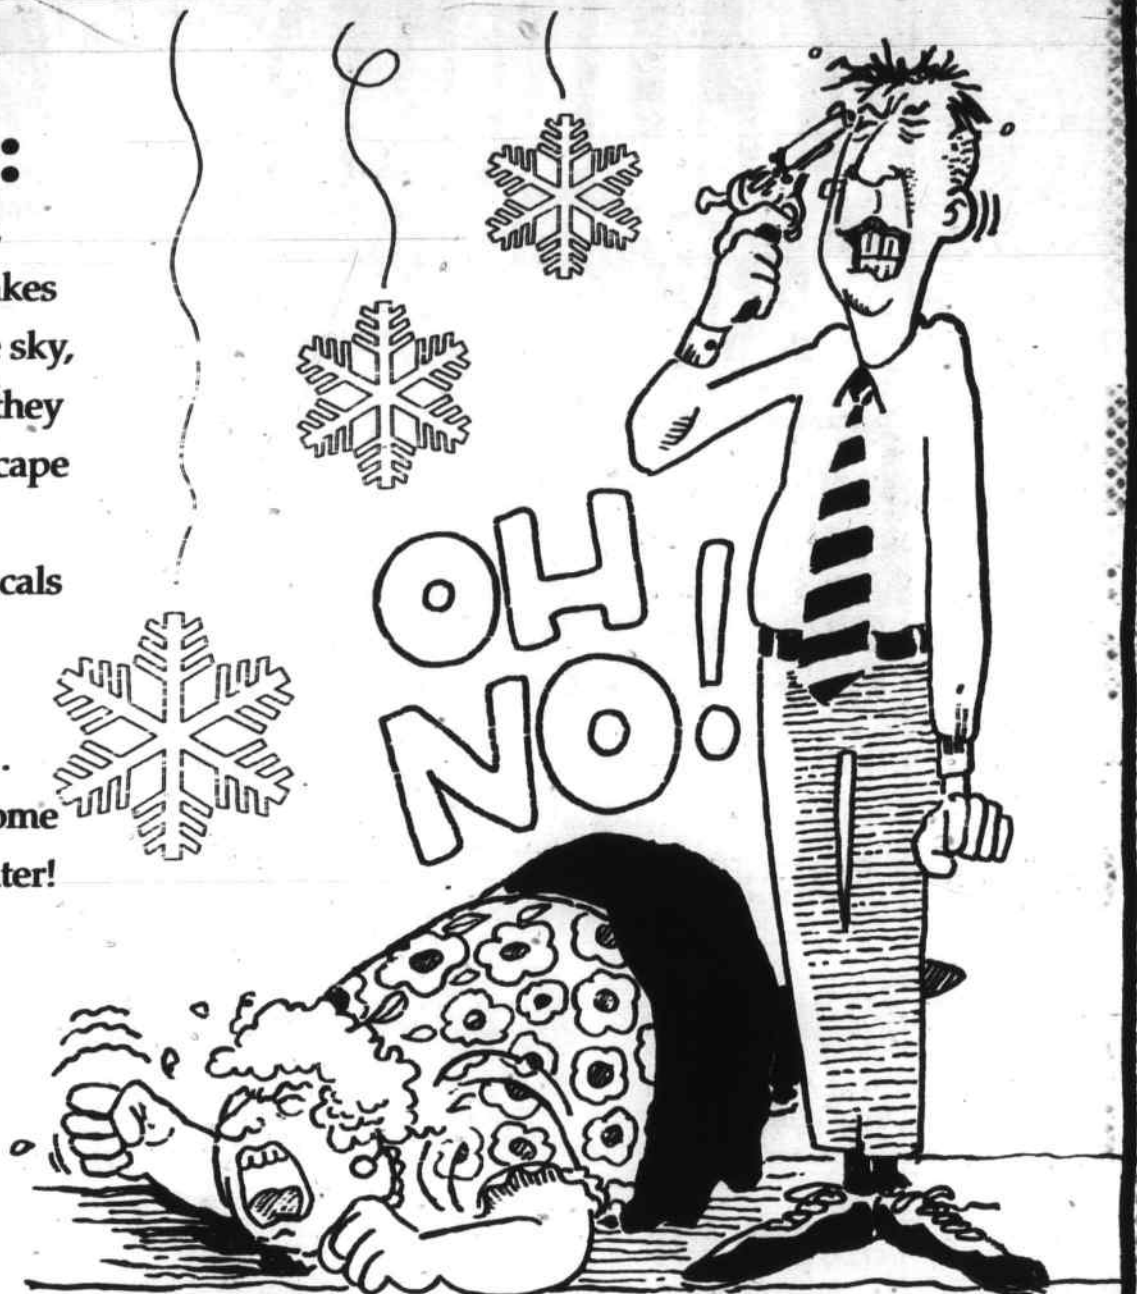

New staff have been hired to boost BOCA's expertise in business development, marketing, and public affairs. Bob Murray, Fuel Co-op Director came to BOCA in August from The Greenworks business incubator in Cambridge where he was Vice-President of Tank Protectors, Inc., an environmental technology company. Micael Fogelberg, Program Director, joined the staff in October after working for the Good Neighbor Project for Sustainable Industries as Director of Communications.

Anyone seeking more information on Boston Oil Consumers Alliance should call the offices at 524-3950.

Wilmington Family Counseling is grateful for 30th party

Dear Larz:

We greatly appreciate the extensive coverage your newspaper gave our 30th Anniversary Tasting Festival. Mike Vitale, your student reporter, is to be congratulated for his professionalism as a reporter and his interesting, well written articles both before and after the event.

Our motto of people helping people was reflected throughout the festival. We recognized the winners of the essay contests at the North and West Intermediate Schools with $50 US Savings Bonds donated by Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank. The stories of all the students who participated in the contest about the person who had the most influence on their lives underscored the benefits of reaching out and providing support and guidance to our youth. The flowers donated by Designs by Don, Main Street Florist, and Boston Flower Market were taken by diners to a friend who had a death in the family, an elderly neighbor, or a co-worker who was going through a difficult divorce, thus, bringing goodwill to the givers as well as the receivers.

The coming together of so many segments of our community in support of our work in helping others was very heart warming and made the 30th anniversary Tasting Festival such a successful fund raiser for services to low income clients who do not have health insurance.

Foremost in their generosity were the restaurants who contributed their delicious specialties made with great care and enthusiasm. The diners voted the following awards:

Zesty Tidbit
Ground Round, Andover
Sweet Tooth Delight
Mirabella's Tewksbury
Nelson's Pastry Cafe, No. Reading
Just Like Mom's
Home Cooking Cafe, Billerica
Stelio's, Wilmington
Exotic Entree
Harbinger Cuisine, Wilmington
Favorite Half-Time Snack
Pizza Mia, Wilmington
Simply Scrumptious
Uptown Deli, Wilmington
Pasta Perfect
Rocco's, Wilmington
Melts in Your Mouth
Mirabella's, Tewksbury
Sauciest Sauce

Ground Round, Andover
Harbinger Cuisine, Wilmington
Lined Up for Seconds
Harbinger Cuisine, Wilmington
Pizza Mia, Wilmington
Uptown Deli, Wilmington
Lovely to Look At
Harbinger Cuisine, Wilmington
Heavenly Aromas
Ground Round, Andover
Uptown Deli, Wilmington
This is It!
Ground Round, Andover
Harbinger Cuisine, Wilmington
Also contributing their specialties were the House of Pizza and the Rick Shaw Express.

The sponsors of the event who also gave generously of their services or contributed were: Hampshire Press, Rapid Reproductions, Sir Speedy, Sign Station, the Bell Atlantic Yellow Pages, Town Crier, Advertiser, Sweetheart Plastics, Kearney Linen Service, and the Wilmington Police Association.

Adding to the fund raising effort was a raffle with prizes generously donated by the following businesses: Andover/Tewksbury Holiday Inn; Bagels to Boston; Boston Celtics; China Cuisine; Custom Stitch; D&D Lock; Essence Salon; Hair's Looking at You; Elizabeth Jope; K&M Dry Cleaners; Kitty's Restaurant; Leduc's Card & Gift; Main Stream Massage; Merrimack Repertory Theater; North Shore Music Theater; Suppliers Auto Parts & Wilmington Builders Supply.

Of course, what really makes an event successful is the people who choose to attend. We particularly want to thank the 175 diners who chose to spend their Sunday afternoon with us. Their feedback about the Tasting Festival has been very positive - they loved the food, the singing by Evan Fiorenza, and the festive atmosphere. We are most grateful for the coming together of many helping hands to make this celebration of our 30 years of helping people in the community such a success!

Leave Wildwood to those who care

Dear Larz:

In regard to a letter to the editor in the 10/22 edition. This was in regard to the placing of decorations and floral displays on the graves, the practice of which he or she strongly disapproved.

This was answered in the 10/29 edition by two letters from the family of Claire M. Peterson and Suzanne Rooney. Cheers to both of these writers for expressing the thoughts of most of us who in the future will join with our relatives and friends who are already at rest in Wildwood Cemetery.

Keep up the flowers and decorations!! Wildwood is a beautifully maintained cemetery and is a fitting resting place for our relatives and friends who have gone before us.

As a suggestion from one of the "future residents" of Wildwood, if you don't like the decorations and flowers, find some other cemetery while you can still make the choice! Leave Wildwood to those of us who appreciate the care and attention given to the graves of our relatives and friends!!

Not-so-scary was great

Dear Larz:

I would like to extend some well earned appreciation with regard to the Oakdale Road "Not-so-Scary Halloween Party." It was a wonderful evening filled with happy kids, hot dogs, popcorn and beautiful weather.

First, thanks go out to the Chisholm Family, especially Eileen. She was kind enough to help plan and coordinate this event, spending just as much time as I did giving appropriate attention to every detail. Much appreciation to Liz Harriman-Mercier for the donation of the paper goods and Joanne Maga for the Pinata. I would also like to thank Joan Maga, my partner in "The Great Dry Ice Hunt."

Most importantly, a huge debt of gratitude to all our guests who were kind enough to bring donations for the Wilmington Food Pantry. A very nice contribution was delivered the next morning and the volunteers at the Pantry were very appreciative.

We hope everyone enjoyed themselves as much as we did and we look forward to next year.

Sincerely,
Susan McIntyre

Backyard birding

Siting the squirrel proof feeder

by HUGH WIBERG

Before getting to several letters and telephone calls recently received, I'd like to dwell for a few minutes on the subject of bird feeders.

If there is one cardinal (no play on words intended) rule with feeders, it is - Do not ever purchase a bird feeder made completely or partially of wood. Experienced birders will confirm that the omnipresent squirrels will make short work of wood feeders. Metal feeders are best, followed by heavy duty styrene. Most of the so called "tube" feeders are made of styrene, and are relatively squirrel resistant when fitted with steel perches and ports. Most manufacturers of bird feeders are reluctant to use the words "Squirrel proof," since there always seems to be one or two exceptionally high I.Q. squirrels around who can find a way to outsmart us mere mortals.

For feeders suspended from tree limbs or on poles, cone shaped baffles can be made (or purchased) which will foil all but the very smartest "tree rats." Be sure your feeders are at least eight feet away from the main trunk of the tree or the side of your house or barn. Squirrels are great leapers; I have watched them travel a full seven feet horizontally. In a future column, I will describe my winter long efforts (1969) to remove all squirrels from my neighborhood. Needless to say, it turned out to be an exercise in futility, and it was clearly demonstrated for me that nature indeed abhors a vacuum. More on that later.

In my first column, I listed the "basic dozen" species already seen at most backyard feeders by October. The invitation was put forward to call me with additional sightings, and there have been several. Two weeks ago I spotted the first purple finches to show up this fall at our feeders, and Bill Hooper (Serenoa Lane, Wilmington) called shortly after to report purple finches on his feeder and slate colored juncos on the ground under his feeder. This increased our informal bird count to 14. Ten days ago my brother Dave (Shady Lane Drive,

These wild turkeys have been trotting around North Wilmington for nearly a year. They seem oblivious of the approaching holiday.

Wilmington) called to say he has a red breasted nuthatch visiting his suet feeder every day. This species was almost totally absent from our Wilmington and Tewksbury feeders last winter. If you are fortunate to spot a red breasted nuthatch in your yard, grab your binoculars. This is one of the prettiest little visitors you will ever see at a backyard feeder. If you have not put a suet feeder up as yet, do so soon. You may be surprised to see some increasing activity as a direct result. If there are hairy or downy woodpeckers within a quarter mile of your house, they will find your suet in a week or 10 days.

Another call from Bill Hooper

early in November reported a cowbird at his sunflower feeder. This is most unusual, since the cowbird is a migrator and has normally moved south by early October. This individual bird was probably old or sick, which could explain this sighting. Bill is an accomplished "birder," and I'm sure he knows a cowbird (brown head and shoulders, black body) when he sees one.

In this same call, Mr. Hooper reports that he had a good, close-up view of a sharp-shinned hawk in his yard. This bird (pg. 152 in Peterson's Eastern Birds) will take an occasional small bird at our feeders, but usually does not hang around for more than a day or two. If you notice a sudden extended quiet in your yard, you may have a small hawk perched nearby, looking for lunch.

Responding to my request for wild turkey sightings in last month's column, Midge Doyon of Woburn Street (near Brown's Crossing pumping station) called early in November to say that she sees five turkeys in and around her yard two or three times a week. Sure enough, there are three females and two males, almost assuredly the same birds we saw on the other side of Rt. 93 all of last winter. How, we wonder, did they manage to cross busy Rt. 93? My guess is that they either flew across - turkeys can fly about 40 yards - or they walked across the Rt. 62 bridge. Any other guesses? And there are other turkeys in Wilmington, as well!

(The feathered kind.) Clair Goodwin of Chestnut Street in Wilmington called to report six turkeys wandering through her area on a regular basis - four adults and two juveniles. Has anyone in Tewksbury seen wild turkeys this fall? The Mass. Fish and Wildlife Service estimates that there are now approximately 15,000 turkeys in Massachusetts. Although originally restocked in the Berkshires in the early '70's, this classic American bird is now spotted as far east as Plymouth and Easton.

Again, I invite your calls if you can add to our inventory of species, now numbering 15. If you see a bird but cannot identify it, give me a call. Got a problem at your feeders? Let's talk about it. My phone number is 658-2860 and you can catch me most evenings.

The free birding seminar (informal discussion group) would be a better description originally scheduled for last Saturday, November 15 at the Pet Shop on Main Street, was scratched due to the inclement weather. We are rescheduled to this Saturday, beginning at 10 a.m. at the Wilmington Pet Shop at Colonial Park Mall, 634 Main St. We will plan to wind it up at 11, and door prizes will be awarded. This event is very informal, and hopefully, will be interesting and informative. Come down and join us!

The publisher's trip to Iraq

The photograph was forbidden

by Capt. Larz Neilson

It was 57 years ago last summer that the SS Honolulan, a 12,000 ton freighter arrived in New York Harbor. This writer was the Chief mate. Capt. Shigley was the Master. Adolf Hitler and his submarine commanders at that time were busy people - sinking British ships in the English Channel and elsewhere. Adolf was also busy with German soldiers in France, Belgium and Poland and possibly those soldiers were in Soviet Russia. The world was in the midst of the beginning of World War II.

Franklin D. Roosevelt as sitting in the White House getting ready to transfer ownership of American cargo ships to the British flag.

World War II was the big news of the day.

Among the American flag ships which were transferred to the British flag was the SS Kansan, of which Capt. Samuel Gates had been in command.

Capt. Shigley had been to the head office of the steamship company, and he returned to the ship to tell his writer that he was to become the Second Mate. Sam Gates, a man from the coast of Maine was to become the Chief mate, and the steamship company had proposed to transfer Larz to another ship and make him the second mate. But Shigley preferred to keep Larz as second mate and thought he would be better as second mate of the Honolulan than of a different vessel. Larz agreed. Shigley was a very fine person to sail with. Shigley had a second bit of information. The Honolulan was to be transferred to a different sphere of operations. It was to load cargo in New York which was to go to Iraq, a country in Africa, near the Indian Ocean. That meant a voyage of over 12,000 miles around South Africa.

Next day Shigley had some more information. The Honolulan was to have a passenger on that voyage to Iraq - a man by the name of Ali. He had just graduated from a well known America college, and there was no way to sail across the Mediterranean, with Adolf's friend Mussolini making all sorts of threats.

Going across Europe was even more dangerous.

The Honolulan was being loaded when Ali showed up. It would not sail for perhaps two weeks. Ali was a pleasant person, capable of speaking in several languages.

Ali had one subject about which he was worrying. How was he to be certain, when he prayed, that he would be facing Mecca, where all Muslims face while at prayer?

That was easy.

The second deck had a number of rooms. Larz and Ali would be near each other on that deck. Another room on that deck, about 15 feet in diameter, was designed to be a "wheelhouse," below the main deck.

In that "wheelhouse" Larz would have a big piece of cardboard carved to the shape of an arrow. That arrow would be constantly pointing at Mecca, and that information made Ali feel much better.

Larz and Ali played chess every afternoon for that voyage of 64 days around Africa and through the Persian Gulf. The arrow was constantly pointed at Mecca, and Ali had no worries.

At the end of the Persian Gulf the Honolulan was to travel up a river for about 65 miles - the "Shat Al Arab" to Basra, the principal trading city. It was this writer's first experience in a city which was 100 percent Muslim.

Men were to be seen, but never any women. The ladies stayed home, 100 percent of the time.

And there was a ban against cameras. The point is that a camera will photograph a person, and to the Muslim society that is a grievous sin.

Both the Shah of Iran and the Khedive of Egypt were attempting to lift that ban, in their civilizations. It was impossible!

Both countries had postage stamps with a picture of the ruler on it. If you wanted to mail a letter you had to use a postage stamp!

It didn't make any difference. Presumably those Muslims purchased the postage stamps and used them - but -

Among the items of the cargo carried by the Honolulan were several automobiles. They were in heavy lumber cases, with arrows painted on them, to show which side was to be on top. The longshoremen landed them upside down!

So Larz took his camera down the dock to photograph those arrows upside down. That, to the Arab men was a grievous sin.

The police captain, who wasn't far away, didn't think so, but the only thing he could do to quiet down those men was to take Larz into his office. He waited about 20 minutes and then walked back to the ship - the camera in the policeman's pocket!

Ali hung around for several days before he could organize a trip back to the area from which he had come. He had to get a few cars to accomplish that.

Ali had a party for the officers of the ship the night before he was to leave. All the officers were invited, and the party was in a nice hotel. The surprise of the party was the Muslim women.

They were dressed in clothing which was strictly "New York," just as they might have been had the party been held in Paris! it was a very nice affair. Everyone enjoyed it!

Next day the Honolulan left Basra, and Larz has never visited the city since then.

Local musicians

Tumult is an unusual band

By AMY PETERSON

WILMINGTON - Ask any four members of the local rock band Tumult to describe their music and stage performance, and they will all give answers varying from dangerous and crazy to unusual and captivating. However, ask them why they spend countless hours together rehearsing, playing, or writing new material and they will all offer the same explanation: because they love doing it. Unlike many other rock bands of the time who play for the sole purpose of gaining fame or money, Tumult plays because of the natural high and self fulfillment it brings to them after every show, not to mention the tremendous positive feedback they receive from their fans. That's right, fans.

Tumult's guitarist 17 year old Matt Rowe of Wilmington, 18 year old Andover natives bassist Jason Pratt and lead singer Jason Lynch, and 19 year old drummer Dan Liacos of Danvers have only been together for about a year, but the success they have attained so far is hard to match. With one independent label CD getting ready to hit local record store shelves and back to back venues lined up, things are only looking up for the future.

Tumult attributes their rapid rate of success to their individual talents and dedication to the band and one another. Having all played in bands previous to Tumult, they know that many times things do not work out because of issues such as conflicting attitudes and lack of motivation. However, they have found their experiences together to be nothing but positive. According to Pratt, "We're from a collection of different backgrounds of different sides and stories and when we came together it all melted together really well."

Perhaps the meshing together has worked so well because all have had the ultimate dream of forever being involved in music and performance, not to mention the remarkable musical talent they each possess. 99 percent of their live show consists of self written and produced tunes. Pratt said, "Almost all of the music we play at a show is our own, but sometimes we like to really grab the audiences attention and play something like Louie, Louie, but with our own twist on it." Rowe added, "We will take a song like Money by the Beatles and put a punk spin on it, and people love it."

Tumult likes to set their music in a category aside from the traditional alternative-rock format that has bombarded rock music charts for most of the 1990's. "It's like something you've never seen or heard", Lynch said. Musical influences range from such artists as Iggy Pop, The Misfits, and the Stooges. Lynch said, "You never hear good old rock and roll type music anymore. There is nothing rocking about rock anymore. We are trying to bring that back but in a 90's sort of way." The goal is to incorporate that threatening edge into their music.

And they are not at all picky about where they play. "We'll play anywhere", Lynch said, "it doesn't matter if we are playing for five people or 5,000, it is all the same to us because we just love what we are doing." They book all of their own venues and will seldom turn an offer down. Past venues have included the Hatchshell in Boston, and Cafe Savoy in Manchester, New Hampshire, which has become close to a regular gig for them. Yet, they claim that private parties and local public shows have consumed most of their playing time.

They claim that in order to catch their true essence, you must attend their live show. "Our live show makes us unique, it is very high intensity and chaotic, much like our name", Lynch said. Apparently, Rowe and Lynch skimmed through the pages of a thesaurus to come up with a name that suitably fit their style, and when they stumbled across Tumult- meaning explosive and unstable, they knew it was a perfect fit.

Tumult recently put the finishing touches on their first independently recorded CD, titled Exit. The disc contains seven original tracks and all the music and lyrics were written by exclusively by the band themselves. According to Rowe, "The main purpose of our CD is to reach everyone who can't make it to our live show."

Lynch, who writes most of the lyrics said that they are based chiefly on personal experiences and relationships. He said, "My lyrics are the type that people can listen to and draw their own conclusions. The last track on the CD, Away, The Final Descent, which was written about coming to the end of a relationship and having to withdraw from the other person has really gotten a powerful reaction from people. Many people have come up to me and said that they could really relate to the song." Local record stores such as Newbury Comics will start carrying the CD on their shelves within the next few weeks, which Tumult hopes will lead to even more widespread recognition and success.

"We know that we will not be an overnight rock success. We have to work at it and we are going full speed right now", Pratt said. Lynch added, "We are having so much fun that even if something doesn't come of this all, it's okay because we are happy with what we are doing."

Some of Tumult's upcoming performances include a November 21st appearance at "Gorefest", (Andover Town Hall, 6 p.m.) a gig collaborated by Lynch and a member of another local band, that consists of a number of local rock bands, and weekend performances at Cafe Savoy.

Wilmington Library notes

Boutwell School celebrates literacy

WILMINGTON - The Children's Room at Wilmington Memorial Library has invited residents to enjoy an exhibit of hand made books created by the students of the Boutwell School in celebration of Family Library Month. Many of the books are collaborative works by an entire classroom, but several individual efforts are also represented.

Using Bill Martin's classic Brown Bear, Brown Bear, What Do You See? as an inspirational springboard, the students composed Halloween, Halloween, What Do You See? using holiday symbols (skeletons, haunted houses) to answer the title's question. On a more personal note, a series of books entitled Who Do You See? is illustrated with photographs of students and teachers.

Ecological concerns are covered in Ways to Make the World More Beautiful and the five senses are explored in In the Fall. Viewers can also enjoy 3-D Halloween books, explanation of owl behavior and tips on school bus safety. The library staff applauds the creative efforts of the children and the guidance of the teachers involved in this worthwhile project. Teachers who took part include:

Sheryl Mosca (K), Cindy Jones (K), Peggy Marrano (K), Vita Graham (K), Anne Field (K), Nancy Murphy (K), Chris Rogers (K), Joan Forestiere (1st), Kay Barry (1st), Jennifer LaBossiere (1st), and Jennifer Slocek (1st). The display will be available for viewing until Thanksgiving.

We gather together

Please join the Children's Department for an evening of family tales and crafts on November 20 at 7 p.m. This program is most appropriate for children ages four through 10 and their parents. Refreshments will be provided by the Friends.

New children's librarian

Susan Macdonald, assistant children's librarian for 23 years, has been appointed to the position of Children's Services Librarian. She replaces Sharon Ruetenik, who resigned her position as Children's Services Librarian in order to rejoin her family in New York. Ms. MacDonald began her library career as a library page when the library was located on what we now know as the 4th of July Building. She is very eager to begin her new position on November 24.

Congratulations Susan! Goodbye Mrs. Ruetenik

The staff and many library patrons, especially the children she has come to know from storytime, will miss her and wish her the best of luck. We applaud the wonderful programs and her dedicated service to the library.

Arthur rescheduled

Arthur got stuck in the snow last Friday. He will visit the Children's Room Friday, Nov. 21 from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 2 to 3 p.m.

WHS using SWAT to fight AIDS

by BEN DeGENNARO
WILMINGTON - Students at Wilmington High School are quite active. Over the past few years, many student run groups have reached new heights due to outstanding leadership, student participation, and faculty support.

New to Wilmington High School last year, Students Working for AIDS Termination of SWAT is a group that raises money for AIDS research. Two weeks ago, SWAT attended a dance-a-thon in Boston. The dance-a-thon was hosted by several clubs on Lansdowne Street. The profits from the dance-a-thon will be used to benefit AIDS research. According to co-presidents Kristen Bruno and Tony Szabo, the event was a success.

Also new to the high school is the Foreign Language Club. Teachers Ms. Bavuso and Ms. Nowak are acting as advisors. The Foreign Language Club will be making pinatas and taking a field trip. With many excited members, the club is off to a terrific start.

Wilmington High School's Student Council is busy preparing for its ninth craft fair at WHS. Student Council Advisor Linda Peters and Student Council President Mike Vitale are busy coordinating all the last minute details for the craft fair. Scheduled to take place November 29, the fair will host tables belonging to school groups and crafters from the area. Santa and Mrs. Claus, as well as an elf or two will be on hand for pictures. This year's Student Council has been doing more activities than in the past. Ms. Peters and Mike Vitale are very proud of the members. "We have a lot of hard working students; and we are especially looking forward to the success of the craft fair. More spaces have been rented than in previous years," Vitale and Peters said of the fair.

Those who would like to rent a space are urged to contact Linda Peters at 978-694-6060.

Bread & Roses has begun its 10th year at Wilmington High School. This is a program whereby students and staff prepare a monthly meal for people at a shelter in Lawrence. In the beginning of the school year, volunteers are asked to bake chicken, cook vegetables, prepare a dessert or bring in coffee. These items are then taken to the drop-off site in Lawrence.

The Wilmington School Mediation Program is in its fourth year at WHS. Since beginning in 1993, the program has been expanded to include over 75 trained mediators throughout the Wilmington Public Schools. These mediators include students, teachers, administrators, and faculty at Wilmington High School, the North and West Intermediate schools, and beginning this year, at the elementary level.

The Academic Decathlon team is also off to a great start. With some new members, and some students from previous years, the team hopes to produce a victory for itself, as well as for the school.

WHS's student publication, the Wildcat News, has just published its second issue of the school year. The Wildcat News is an integral part of the high school atmosphere. The editor-in-chief of the paper, as well as a 10 member staff are responsible for the layout and distribution of the publication.

Finally, the Technology Resource Group, started last month at WHS. The group works with the School Department Technology Coordinator. The student technology group assists with day to day operations of the computers at the high school and undertakes projects and field trips.

Extracurricular activities are very much a part of Wilmington High School. Next week, the remainder of extracurricular activities. These include the Medical Careers Club, DECA, SADD and Peer Leadership Activities don't keep Baker from getting all "A's"

by MIKE VITALE
Michelle Baker

WILMINGTON - She just finished an exhausting and extreme season of Varsity Volleyball and is getting ready for a new season of cheerleading to begin. In the middle Michelle Baker is balancing a full class schedule and an array of activities that are making her senior year quite active.

Daughter of Michael and Lorraine Baker, Michelle has put forth her best in high school and it has shown in her marks. This term she received straight A's in all of her classes. English, Astronomy, Math, Office of the Future, and Psychology comprise her schedule this year. Other than continuing to succeed in her classes, Michelle wants to make the best of her last year in high school.

She is involved in several after school activities, including SADD, Bread and Roses, Peer Leadership, and has served on both the Prom and the Yearbook Committee. She has also taken part in Project Alliance and tutored in math. Michelle has won the accounting Business Award and the Typing Award for her excellence in those classes.

Since she was a freshman, Michelle has been on the WHS volleyball team. This year the team excelled into the State Tournament and were tri-champs in the Division II Northshore League, something WHS hasn't done in over a decade. Coached by Mike Nee and Sarah Zimmerli, the team has several excellent qualities and the girls are all friends. Sarah Zimmerli has left a special mark on Michelle, having her as a coach and a history teacher.

"Ms. Zimmerli makes the information we learn interesting. She has a different method of teaching compared to other teachers. Not only is she an excellent teacher, but she makes me feel comfortable around her. I feel that if I ever need someone to talk to, she will be there for me."

Michelle is looking at Suffolk and UNH for colleges, however Northeastern will be her first choice. "I've always wanted to go to school in the city. I love the city.

Northeastern also has all the educational programs I need to be successful in life," she said. Michelle believes that she cannot plan her future: wherever life takes her is where she will be. However she does plan to be happy, successful, and independent in whatever she does.

Michelle has had a great high school experience and is looking forward to the rest of her senior year. Freshman year was most memorable for Michelle because of all the changes that took place and meeting all the new people.

No matter how much Michelle has accomplished over the years, what she is most proud of is the relationship she has with her mother, Lorraine. "We are best friends and always will be. No matter what rare fight we get into we will always work things out and compromise. She is always there for me whenever I need someone." She said fondly.

Dating violence lesson in "Yellow Dress"

WILMINGTON - On November 5, sophomores and seniors at Wilmington High School were given an opportunity to become more aware of a situation which effect all women today. Deana's Fund, a not-for-profit organization performed a one woman play called "The Yellow Dress."

It's purpose is to teach young people not to be tolerant of dating violence. This play integrates important facts and statistics based on research and observations into the theatrical performance. The main focus is to allow teens to experience the violence in a theater rather than have to experience it in their own lives.

This production was made possible by S.A.D.D. and its members.

What's Up at the Woburn Street School

WILMINGTON - Woburn Street students Philip D'Archangelo, Jessica Metcalfe, Bethany Christolm and Karelyn Maggio under the direction of art teacher Karen Larabee, have been selected to show their work as part of the International Youth Art Exchange traveling exhibit. The program is designed to promote positive images of various cultures via the sharing of student art work.

Art historian Caren Doben spoke to fifth grade classes about the Italian Renaissance on October 24. The slide presentation introduced the art of Michelangelo, Ragacl, Leonardo Davinci, and Botticelli and gave the children a chance to view, discover and discuss the artists and their unique styles. Through comparing and contrasting different works, children learned about allegory, mythology and the traditional portraits of the art of this exciting period. The Italian Renaissance is the focal point for our all school Art Expo Night in the Derosan Art Gallery in the spring.

Ms. Matthews' class is working on a science unit on the solar system. The children worked on a creative arts project at home. They had a choice of activities to choose from. Many students created large three dimensional models, space stations, dioramas, posters and game boards of the solar system. In school the children are busy researching the nine planets and creating and publishing a big book on the solar system.

November is Literacy Month: in celebration of National Literacy Month, the PAC Enrichment Committee will be sponsoring a writer in residency program for fourth and fifth grade students. Mr. Jeff Kelly, local author will be working with the students from November 10-21.

Wilmington senior

WILMINGTON - Last Thursday evening the Wilmington Senior Citizens attended Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks annual senior dinner dance. As in past years, the seniors had a very enjoyable evening. The Elks and their wives worked very hard to please and that they succeeded in doing.

The meal was delicious and the music was delightful, to the pleasure of the dancers. To top the evening off many gifts were raffled for seniors with lucky tickets. To all the men and women who spent countless hours preparing and serving the excellent meal, collecting articles for the drawings, and with the excellent music for dancing, we extend our very grateful thanks for considering the Wilmington Senior Citizens in such a thoughtful way.

Fair articles in the making

Thursday, November 20, the sewing, knitting and crocheting class along with the shop class and ceramic class, will be held from 9 a.m. to noon. All of these classes are excellent ways to learn a hobby, while making articles for the Senior Fair.

Diabetes/blood pressure tests

The nurse will be at the Center Thursday, November 20 from 1:30 p.m. She will be checking blood pressures and giving diabetes tests. Always remember, the older one gets the more vulnerable they are to become diabetic. Diabetes is a silent illness that can be active in the body with no warning signs until it becomes a serious medical problem.

The leading cause of strokes is from diabetes. If one cannot get to the center on Thursday, the nurse will be there again on Tuesday, Nov. 25. At that time she will be administering cholesterol screenings and diabetes tests. These tests will be taken on the new machine purchased by the Board of Health. To cover the cost of the medication used to develop the test the cholesterol screening alone will be $9, to add additional medication for the diabetes test the cost will be $10.

If these tests are taken at a hospital the cost would be very high. One may say that Medicare will pay 80 percent if taken at a hospital. Seniors should know that every dollar paid out by Medicare to cover tests of any type will lower the limited amount of money available for medical coverage. Money one may need if and when a slow moving terminal illness arrives that would call for constant medical care and expensive medication. The cholesterol screening and diabetes test given at the center are practically free of charge.

Senior fair

The Senior Fair is but days away, December 6. Many articles are needed and the Committee needs help. Remember, the Fair money is used for articles needed in the classes and programs, whether the class is craft, ceramic, dancing, knitting, sewing, crocheting, shop and bingo. It also pays for the Christmas Open House Party and the July Social and one of the three holiday catered meals delivered to shut in seniors during the year.

Unless more chance books are sold and more articles for tables arrive, it will be difficult to make this fair as successful as previous years. Seniors are urged to buy a gift for the Christmas table, make mittens and other knitted articles, cook desserts, look through their homes for gifts received for Christmas and other important days that were never used. They can be sold. Any help one can give the committee, they will be grateful for.

Senior Work Off Programs

The Senior Work Off Program applications are available at the Center. Those who feel they need some help paying real estate taxes, may qualify for this program. It is exactly as it says, "Work Off." One will be assigned a little job in the town to work for $500. The $500 will be put toward your tax bill.

Activity programs

Monday, Nov. 24, exercise class from 10 to 11 a.m., art class from 1 to 3, whist starting at noon; Tuesday, Nov. 25, nutrition class 10 a.m. to noon, cholesterol screening starting at 9:30 a.m.; Wednesday, Nov. 26, exercise class from 10 to 11 a.m., craft class from 9 a.m. to noon; Thursday, Nov. 27, Thanksgiving Day the Center will be closed; Friday, Nov. 28, exercise class from 10 to 11 a.m. and bingo from 1 to 3 p.m.

House of Representatives

Electric utility restructured

BOSTON - Monday evening, November 10, the Massachusetts House of Representatives voted to approve legislation to restructure the electric utility industry. As part of these sweeping changes, language was included that will help the NESWC communities pay for air emission retrofit costs or pay to support the closing of the facility if that is possible.

"We are thrilled by the support of the House of Representatives in general and Representatives Miceli and LeLachur in particular," said Steven M. Rothstein, Executive Director of the Northeast Solid Waste Committee (NESWC). "The Representatives have provided important rate relief to the NESWC communities with this action."

The legislation includes a fund supported through an electric rate charge to support renewable energy development. The NESWC facility will be able to apply for funds either to clean up the air or close the facility. There is a potential for up to $5 million a year for five years for the North Andover waste-to-energy facility.

"We look forward to the Senate's consideration shortly. This amendment to the electricity restructuring legislation was originally introduced by Senator John O'Brien of Andover," added Rothstein. "With Senator O'Brien's continued leadership on this issue, combined with the support of the other NESWC Senators, we hope this section will remain in the Senate version of the bill."

"This is an important issue and I am glad to have an opportunity to help my constituents and the other NESWC taxpayers," noted Senator O'Brien.

"the old town dump" located imminent to the area under speculation. According to Erickson, "Where the boy took us, we actually walked through some of the dumping ground."

Apparently, investigators at that time noticed a possibility of systematic burying of waste in barrels at the dump, which could have dated back as far as the 1980's. Erickson could not elaborate on specifics, but did reveal that he had learned that the Attorney General's office had speculated the site in the 1980's but did not follow up on anything, nor did they inform the Board of Health of the situation. Erickson did say, however, that the spot had not been fully investigated recently and no conclusions should be drawn at this time until further

"The NESWC legislative caucus has been working hard for NESWC taxpayers. This is a significant step forward for the NESWC communities to slowing growth on the trash disposal costs," Rothstein said.

NESWC is a group of 23 communities that entered into a 20 year contract to dispose of their municipal solid waste at a waste-to-energy facility. The communities include Wilmington, Tewksbury, Acton, Andover, Arlington, Bedford, Belmont, Boxborough, Burlington, Carlisle, Dracut, Hamilton, Lexington, Lincoln, Manchester, North Andover, North Reading, Peabody, Watertown, Wenham, West Newbury, Westford and Winchester.

evidence suggests so.

Currently, the EPA and Swenson's doctor's are working hand in hand with the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry in Atlanta, Ga., to help determine what the cause of the allergic reaction is. Apparently, Swenson's and the other children's mother's have kept the clothes their children were wearing on the day of the alleged exposure, sealed in a bag, so that tests can be run on them in hopes to pinpoint on which toxin is causing the mysterious illness.

Since the issue has been brought to the attention of the public, the Board of Health has received numerous calls from people voicing both concerns and similar experiences. Erickson said, "Someone who lives on a side street near McDonald Road called me. The individual is 37 years old and said that they have had a similar type rash off and on for the past three years." The person has not experienced any serious or life threatening side effects up to this point in time.

Erickson and Board of Health member Dr. James Ficocello were scheduled to take another tour to observe the site on Wednesday November 19th. They would like members of the public know that as soon the cause of the mysterious illness is unfolded, the Board of Health will hold a public information meeting to answer any questions and address any concerns that people may have regarding the subject.

Lowell street plan

Silberberg expressed the importance of retail and private businesses in Wilmington. "The town is growing and there is a need for retail and businesses as it grows. The town can benefit from the money made from retail and private businesses," said Silberberg.

The area between Route 38 and Woburn Street contains a mix of uses, such as recreational, residential, and business and industrial. To smooth transitions between residential and business/industrial uses, the plan proposes that a floating district entitled "Residential Village" be allowed for lots fronting Lowell Street.

The plan also enforces the desire to preserve Wilmington's residential and rural character. The plan reads, "Area D retains much of the rural, residential charm which is symbolic of Wilmington. In addition to the historic structures in this area, large shade trees and open space/wetlands areas give a district character which is threatened by the commercial growth represented by Burger King."

Silberberg stated that there are no sections in the plan that replaced residential homes with businesses.

The goals of the plan are to concentrate development areas, design safer streets, preserve residential and rural character, and enhance the identity of the corridor, according to the plan.

The planning teams focused on maintaining public safety in both the Commercial Village areas and Residential Village areas. The circulation objective reads, "Maintain current level of vehicle services, preserve the residential, rural character of the corridor, increase public safety, facilitate greater pedestrian and bicycle use, and match roadway improvements with expected zoning/land use trends."

"It is important to have a plan for the whole corridor. The town is changing and it [Lowell Street] needs to change. It says a lot when the town agrees on this," said Silberberg.

Planning Board Chairman James DiOrio said, "The plan has to go before the town meeting to vote on it. We are trying to move forward and we are committed to working on the plan."

DiOrio also expressed that he does not want to see spot zoning in the area and the plan complies with this request.

Planning team member Ole Amundsen stated that the reconstruction plans for Wilmington presently do not have a set date. "It will be a general sequence of time events. I don't know how far down the road the idea is. It maybe five years away," said Amundsen.

Zoning by-law change

ested in relocating, was met with opposition at the Planning Board's November meeting. Members of the board strongly recommended disapproval based on the unseen results of the current planning study by M.I.T. students, which could potentially lead to some rezoning, as well as the concerns of abutting residents.

One abutter of the Lowell St. site, Richard Towle, expressed to town officials that an approval of the by-law amendment would be premature at this time.

"In theory, I agree with Mr. Brennan's desires. However, I think that there are too many unanswered questions," said Towle.

Joseph Kelley, who lives on nearby Strout Ave., also opposed the rezoning of the area which, according to some Strout Ave. residents, has become plagued by the presence of bright lights and heavy traffic.

"All the people in my neighborhood are getting tired of people building on a postage stamp," said Kelley. "The quality of our neighborhood is going severely downhill."

In addition to the congested roadways, many residents feared that if the doctor's office was relocated to Brennan's land, and failed to thrive, the property would be resold to a chain restaurant or auto dealership. According to the Planning Board, once the area is rezoned as General Business, there is no way to ensure that the land will be used for its intended purpose.

However, some residents felt that Brennan's contract with the physician was firm enough, and that the office, which would specialize in elder care, would benefit the neighborhood.

Article 1, which appropriated the sum of $50,000 for the town's public schools, was unanimously approved. Originally, the town sought $526,184 from the Massachusetts Department of Education Foundation Reserve Program, but was denied funding when legislature earmarking funds for Wilmington was removed, and the entire state became eligible to apply.

Other approvals included the appropriation of $91,451 from the Additional Lottery Aid, and $200,000 to be raised by borrowing from the Massachusetts Water Pollution Abatement Trust.

Microcomputer Lab funded

WILMINGTON - The Board of Trustees of the Wilmington Educational Foundation has successfully concluded its fund raising campaign to raise money for the Microcomputer Based Laboratory (MBL) which will be utilized by the Wilmington High School students. The total cost for the project is $17,500.00. This MBL is one of several projects in the five year technology plan of the Wilmington Public Schools.

The Microcomputer Based Laboratory will provide the tools necessary to help stimulate students to play an active role in their learning. The components of an MBL station-a microcomputer, probes and sensors and an interface box enable students to do experiments not otherwise possible in a more conventional sciences lab. The laboratory will provide an atmosphere for creativity which will benefit not just the students and teachers but the entire community.

The Board of Trustees will be hosting a luncheon at the high school on December 9, 1997 for the donors and other guests.

SHOULD YOU REMODEL OR MOVE?
At some point your present home may begin to feel cramped. You would like enough room to have an "adult haven", but you must weigh the price of larger homes versus the prospect of living with contractors and plaster dust for a long time. What should you do?
Before you decide on a major home improvement project, talk with a Realtor who knows your neighborhood. Will changes you have in mind over-improve your home, making it difficult to re-sell or to get your investment back? Find out how much your present home is currently worth. You may be able to make a down payment on a larger home that would lower your mortgage payments. It may be worth making a move to avoid the stress and inconvenience of remodeling, if you can find another home that has everything you would like to add to your present home.

Boys soccer team blanks undefeated Norwell team

by Jamie Pote
Sports Editor

For about 54 minutes, senior tri-captain Tom Heigham stood freezing on the sidelines, cheering on his teammates. It was evident just how hard it was for Heigham to not be playing in what could have been his last high school soccer game as well as the most important soccer game of his career and the program's existence.

As Heigham tried to move around on the sidelines trying to get his blood pumping, while watching the scoreless Eastern Mass. Championship game, head coach Dick Scanlon walked over to him. "I told him 'I want you to play forward [not his normal halfback position]. And whenever you get a chance to shoot...shoot from anywhere, you have a good shot.'"

One minute later, after taking his jacket off and checking into the game, Heigham did exactly what the coach told him to do. He was out front of the Norwell net about 15 yards with the ball and a defender right on him. He took a right footed shot that was deflected off the leg of the Norwell defender as it went right back to Heigham. On his second shot, the ball scooted through the legs of both the defender and the goalie and on a weird deflection his shot gave Wilmington its first crack at a state championship in its 28-year existence with their 1-0 win over Norwell High School on a frigid Thursday evening at Woburn High School.

"I was at the right place at the right time," Heigham said as his first tournament goal put Wilmington in the Division III State finals against Gateway Regional High School of Huntington, on Friday night at 7:30 at WPI. "I think it deflected off one of their defenders. I'm not sure. But, this is great, it's a dream come true. I can remember sitting in (pointing) those stands at this stadium seven years ago watching the 1990 team lose, 3-1 to Medway in this [Eastern Mass. Final] game. I was ten years old and all I've ever wanted to do was to be able to play in this game. Wow, I can't believe we're going to it."

Scanlon, on the other hand, new what he was doing all along. "I told Tom after the game, that it was a great coaching move by me," Scanlon chuckled with a smile from ear to ear.

But the win didn't happen so easy. Norwell was a very good soccer team. They were 20-0 in their league, they never were shut out all season long, and they only gave up a handful of goals all season long. They had one player, who had 96 career goals coming into the game as a junior. So they were legit.

"We had a plan going into the game and the plan was this: We wanted to keep them off the board in the first 15 minutes, so we went into a twin-sweeper set-up and after those first few minutes where they didn't score, we went back into the 'Diamond' set-up. We were concerned that had they scored a goal early on, that it might have drained us emotionally and we didn't want that to happen. We knew they were a very good scoring team."

"They are a very good soccer team. They played a very good game. It was one of those games, that wouldn't be territorially dominated by one team. This is wonderful, I'm delighted that we won and it's the furthest I've gone in my 18 years here," Scanlon continued.

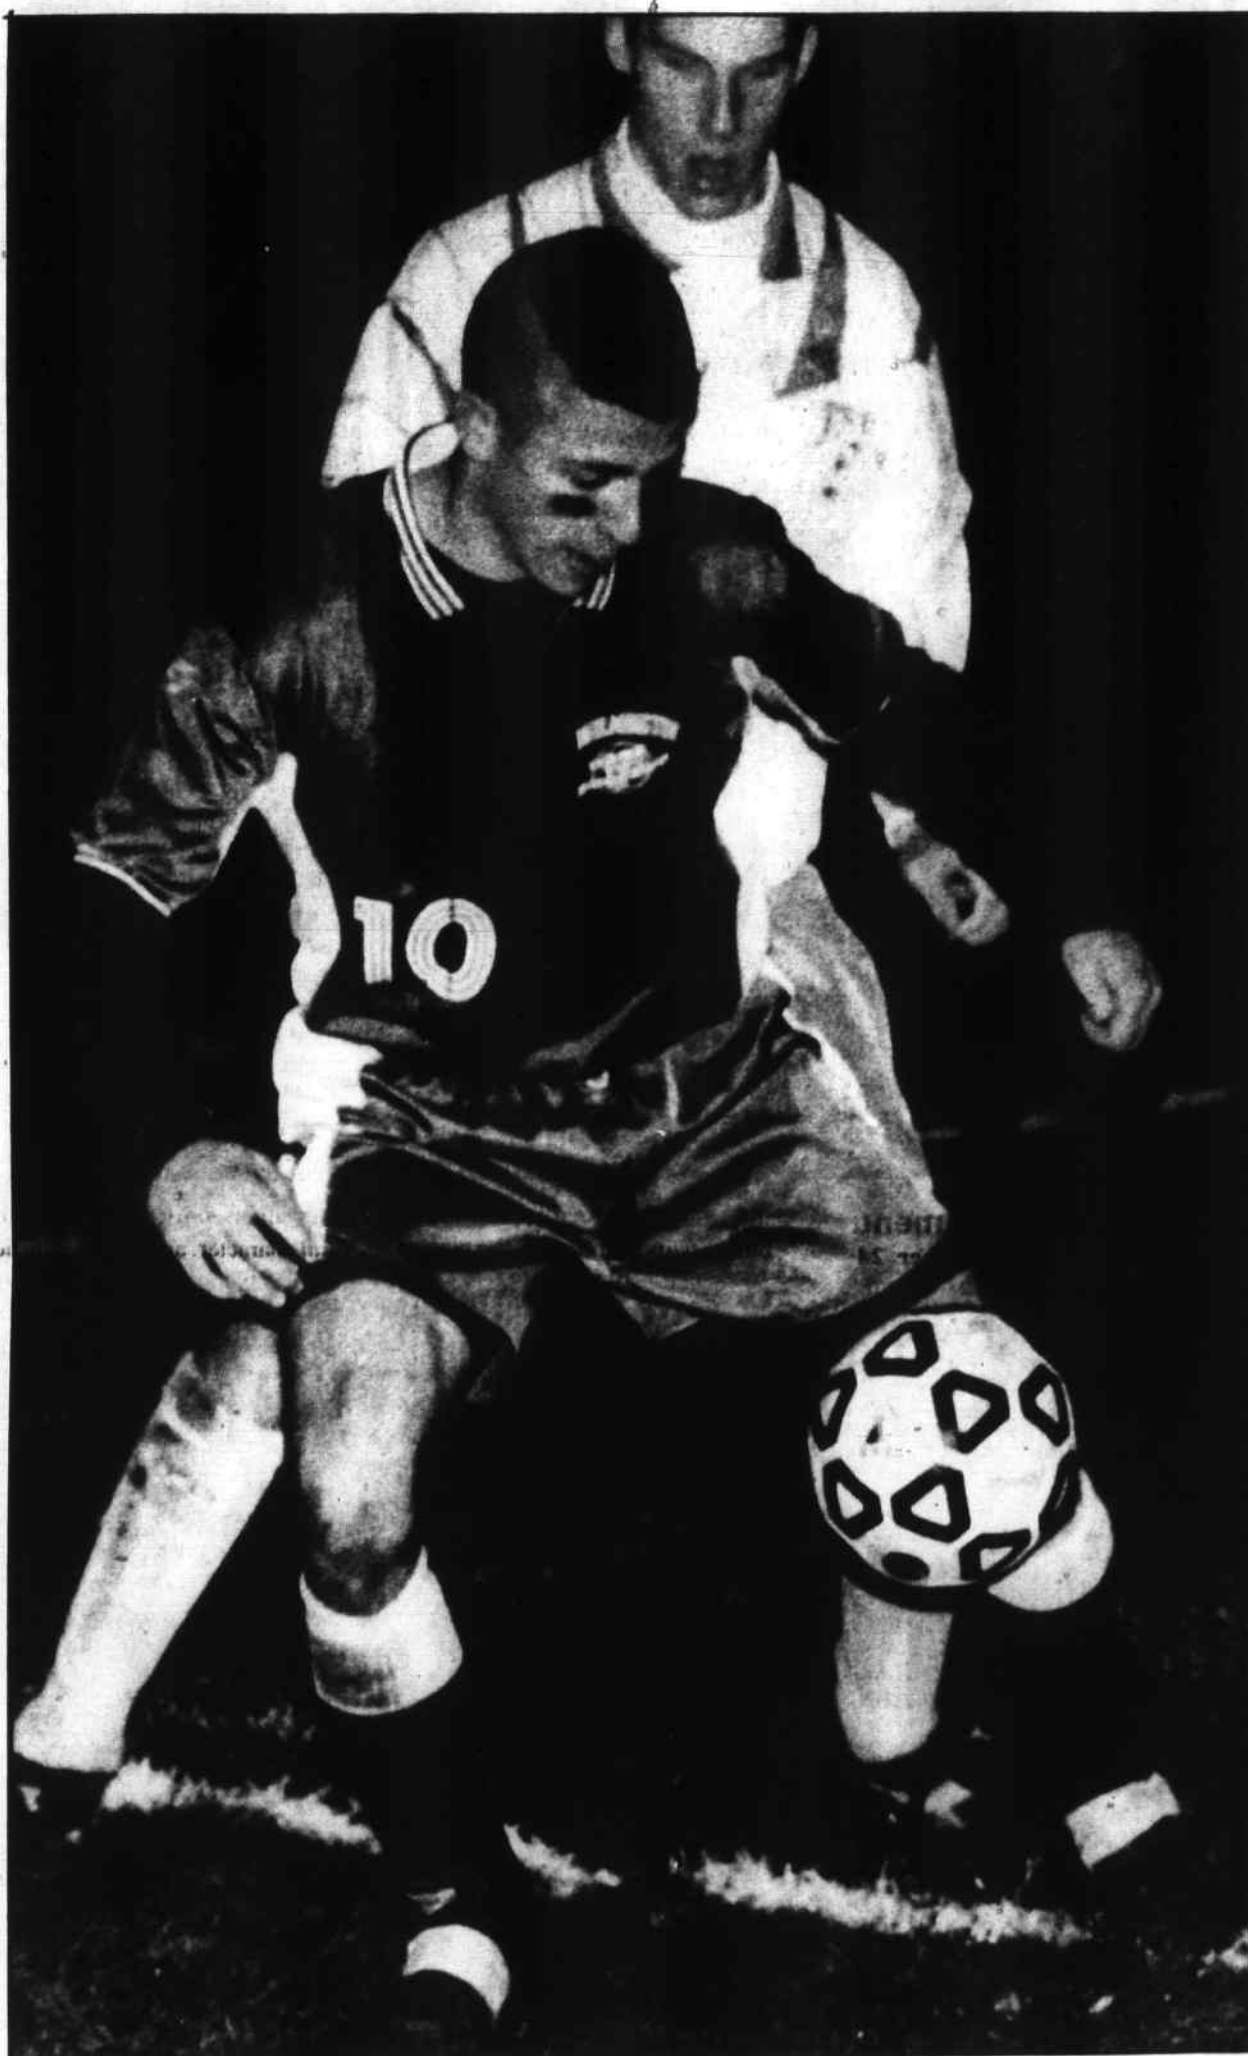

Junior Mark DiGiovanni, usually a half-back, but is more known for his versatility, said it was harder for him to concentrate after Heigham's goal.

"I couldn't get my face away from the clock [after the goal]. It was the longest 24 minutes of my life," DiGiovanni said prior to getting hugs from his older brothers, one being Kevin who was on the 1990 team. "This is just unbelievable. This group of players have been together for so many years now. We all watched the [1990] team lose. But we're not done yet, we have one more victory to go. And if we keep on doing what we have done all season long and that is beat [opponents] to the ball and play good defense, then we will be state champions."

Throughout the first 40 minutes of play, both teams felt each other out. Norwell had the advantage in shots at 3-1, as the lone Cats shot on net came at the twenty minute mark when Chris Kilburn's boot was kicked out by a defender in front of the goal line.

However, Wilmington and T.J. Flynn were saved with about ten

Cats to face Gateway Regional

by Jamie Pote
Sports Editor

On Friday night, both Wilmington and Gateway Regional High School boys soccer programs will be vying for their first ever state championship, respectively.

Gateway and Wilmington have some interesting ties together. Back in 1990, when Wilmington lost in the Eastern Mass. Finals against Medway, 3-1, Gateway lost to the same Medway team in the previous game in five overtimes. On top of that, Wilmington Athletics Director Jim Gillis and Gateway's Athletics Director Jeff Fiske, who is also the boys soccer coach, went to same college together at Springfield.

So who is Gateway Regional High School?

"We're a regional school made up of seven towns. We've got 420 kids in the school. We're two hours away from Boston and an hour-and-twenty minutes from Worcester," explained Fiske who is also one of the head guidance counselor as well as GHS. "Our record is 17-2-2 and we play in what's called the Harley Division. In this division that we play in, there are 43 schools in it, and the league is realign every two years, based on the success of the teams in those two years. This year we have faced a very tough schedule."

And does Fiske know anything about Wilmington?

"All I know is their nickname and that I went to school with Jim Gillis," he joked.

As for Wilmington head coach Dick Scanlon, he knows a little bit more about his opponent than Fiske does about the Cats.

"I know they have been to the tournament three times since the 90s. [Their loss to Medway in '90] speaks very well of the program. They are a hard working, aggressive team. They have a nice blend of forwards and a well balanced team. They are a solid club for sure," Scanlon said.

Gateway has scored 75 goals in Cats beat Masco, 6-0 Gillis, Campbell rise to the occasion

by Jamie Pote
Sports Editor

To much of the chagrin of Tim Gale's bolstering 29 carries through the thick mud on a frozen and disgusting football field, the under-rated Wildcat defense stuffed the 6'1" ironhorse halfback three times at the goal line which resulted in a missed field goal by Masconomet.

That in turn resulted in Tim Gillis' and Jamie Campbell's rising to the occasion as they did so with mesmerizing determination, strength and will-power to win during the team's impressive 80-yard drive with less than four minutes to go in a scoreless game. Gillis was the hero on this day, scoring on a 25-yard touchdown run with a 1:20 left in the game to give the Cats a huge moral victory over a very tough Masco (7-1 in the league before the game) squad.

And even though Gillis was the hero for the day, he, Campbell and the other nine defensive players, are the true heroes for salvaging another fun, productive and successful high school football season.

"The character of this team [pauses]... That was as good as a defensive series as I've seen," said a very high-strung emotional Bob Almeida after the 6-0 victory on Monday afternoon. "Masconomet is absolutely a great team. It became the battle of the wills and after they missed the field goal, these kids were determined to win the game."

"We've responded to challenges all season long, after the Newburyport loss we did, after the Hamilton-Wenham loss we did and after stopping Gale three times, we did. When we got the ball back [after the miss field goal] Jamie Campbell and Timmy Gillis refused, refused to be tackled. Masco has a terrific defense and they stoned us all-day long and we had to come up big we did," Almeida continued.

Despite the terrible field conditions (the game was moved to Monday because of the snow storm), both teams had trouble getting their offenses going. Masco relied on possible 40 run plays and 48 scrimmage plays. Wilmington, on the other hand, didn't get a first down until their second series of the second half. They didn't get their second first down until their last series in which they scored on.

Wilmington struggled all day on offense, with just 97 total yards with three of those coming in the air as Gillis completed just 1-of-5 attempts because of the swirling wind and slippery measures.

Anyway, after a neutral defensive first half, Wilmington went three-and-out to start the second half which was their fifth time in the game to that point. Mike Gennetti punted and Masco started their drive at their own 45. Masco then went three-and-out themselves on three Gale carries and they too punted (Gale, of course) to the Wilmington 38. Rory Ballou went to catch the ball, he missed it, and the ball appeared to go through his legs. Masconomet covered the ball and it was ruled their ball, apparently as the referee said the ball hit Ballou. Either way, Masco had the ball at the Cats 30-yard line.

Now Wilmington was in trouble. On their first play from scrimmage, Gale took a hand-off, fumbled it and he recovered it. The next play he was stopped at the line of scrimmage by the Cats defense and on third-and-ten, Bryan Mason made his fourth tackle for a loss of yards when he sacked quarterback Kevin Koster for a loss of seven yards. Gale punted into the end zone for a touchback and Wilmington took over on downs.

After carrying the ball two previous times for a loss of eight yards, sophomore Matt Minghella was given a few more chances. His third opportunity came on the first play from scrimmage and he too was stuffed at the line. Almeida still had faith in his back. So, Almeida again had Gillis hand the ball off to Minghella, and the slim and speedy kid took the ball 16 yards for the teams first first down of the game. Three plays later and one-yard gain between those three plays, Gennetti punted and Masco took over at the Cats 35 after a strong run-back by who other than Gale?

For the next 32 yards on nine plays, Gale was given the ball on all nine plays, mostly dives up the middle. He made positive yards of 6, 1, 9, 1, 3, 10 and 2 on his first seven carries which gave Masco two first downs in the process. Now after the seventh carry, the ball was on the Cats three-yard line on second-and-goal. Gale darted through the middle and was stopped. On third down, he tried to his right side, again he was stopped. That forced Masco to try a field goal and the weak boot was wide right to keep the game scoreless.

Wilmington took over at their own 20. Mike Gennetti took the first two carries for five totaled yards. Jamie Campbell followed with a huge 10-yard gain through the middle for a big first down. Tim Gillis' 12-yard keeper down the sidelines gave the team its second straight first down. After a two-yard gain, Wilmington changed its pattern a little bit and Gillis was told to give a screen pass over the middle, but the pass to the wide-open receiver was dropped. Now on third-and-eight at the Cats 49, Gillis again took the ball this time good for eleven yards to the M40. Campbell and Gennetti combined for eleven more yards for another first down with the ball at the M30. Again Campbell and Gennetti ran the ball consecutively and this time they combined for five yards to set-up third-and-five at the M25. And for the fifth time this season, Gillis took the snap on a bootleg to the left, keeper play, for the lone score of the game and the victory.

"Timmy made that call, he wanted the ball. We were pounding the ball right all series," Almeida said.

Masco gave the Cats a little scare when they had the ball with the 1:20 left, but they managed to get to the Cats 30-yard line before time expired.

Cheerleading squad takes home another prestigious award

by Stephen Repsys
Sports Correspondent

For the second time in its three-year stint in the Cape Ann League, the Wilmington High School Cheerleading squad pulled off another award for its outstanding efforts, dedication and passion. Tuesday night, in front of a packed house at North Andover High School, the Cats brought home the "Team Spirit Award," after their impressive showing.

Sarah Cosman, coach of the cheerleading squad, had two goals going into the competition - to win the coveted spirit award and to have no injuries in the competition. Ms. Cosman received both her wishes.

She was especially proud of winning the spirit award, which is awarded for good sportsmanship. What makes the spirit award special to Ms. Cosman is that it is voted on by the other schools in the Cape Ann League.

"This is the most important award given here tonight," said Cosman moments after the team won the award. "I can't tell you how excited I am right now."

Kelly Cavanaugh, a sophomore, said the WHS cheerleading squad was deserving of the award.

"We go out of our way to be nice for other cheerleaders," she said. "This was very exciting to win the spirit award."

The gymnasium was packed to the rafters with screaming fans for all 13 teams involved. Before the frenzied crowd, the Lady Wildcats performed their four minute routine, going second.

"I thought it was harder to go near the beginning," said Captain Kerri French. "It's easier to watch everyone else."

Cosman said she thought going near the beginning had its ups and downs.

"Going second was easier for the girls to get it over with," she said. "For judging purposes it might be better to go near the end."

The Cats routine started with a round-up liberty, where one cheerleader is hoisted in the air to full extension. The Lady Wildcats then burst into their dance routine with music from Jock Jams playing in the background. After that, the WHS cheering squad performed tumbling routines and ended with high intensity dancing moves. The choreography for the competition was done by Jackie Hanafin, a sophomore and French.

For Tuesday's night competition, the WHS squad has been practicing for months. To finalize their routine, the Lady Wildcats rehearsed three hours a day for a month. All the preparation was worth the effort, said many members of the squad.

"They were excellent tonight," said Cosman. "They were perfect. All their hard work paid off."

The WHS cheerleading squad not only successfully perfectly performed their routine, but had to do so in front of hundreds of screaming people.

"It takes a lot to get out there in front of a large crowd," said Cosman. "I don't think they were fazed by the big crowd at all."

French said the team drew energy from the cheerleading fans in the stands.

"At first I was very nervous. We worked very hard to get here but it was fun performing before a big crowd," said French. "If anything it made us perform better."

Members of the squad said they enjoyed the experience.

"The team did well," said Cavanaugh. "We did our best. That's all that matters."

Angela Downs, a junior, was honored on Tuesday after all the teams performed as a WHS cheerleading all-star. She was voted for the honor by Cosman for several reasons.

"She was chosen for her commitment to cheerleading. She is always there to help out the team," said Cosman.

A lot should be said for this entire cheerleading squad. On Monday afternoon, the entire squad traveled to Masconomet for the make-up football game. There, the cheerleaders performed in extremely cold weather, on the visitors sidelines with hardly any room to perform, as well as being in a pile of snow with just a handful of fans to cheer to. They certainly should be commended for that.

And from the start of the season until Tuesday, this group has always gone out of its way to support the football team as well as performing on their own for the home town fans. On Tuesday, their hard work and dedication paid off as the entire Wilmington High School cheerleaders came away winners.

Mite A's back on winning track

Wilmington 4 Burlington 2

The Wilmington Mite A Team, sponsored by First Electric Motor, finally got back on the winning track by beating Burlington 4-2 in a Valley League game.

The game was won by a team effort, along with good passing and good defense. Wilmington was down by one in the first until defenseman Chris Stafford broke up the play in his own end, carried over the blue line, passed it off to Mike Fay who shot it in far side.

The Wildcat jumped out in front when Danny Silva made a nice feed to Dan Metcalfe skating up the left side, just sent a bullet in from the score from the top of the left circle. Burlington came back to tie it up on a jam in front of the net. That would be the last goal the Redmen would get as Mike Emery, who played between the pipes for Wilmington just shut them down as he pounced on any puck that came his way.

Wilmington added two more to close out the second with Fay sending Dana Steenbruggen streaking up the right side for a goal. The second goal started out on a nice defensive play by Shane Foley stopping a two on one, passed it up to Dave Rizzo who just put a dot on net. That was stopped by Zachary Church who was there to bang in the rebound.

In the third the Wildcats played well in their own end, with good back checking by Mark Walsh and Derek DeRosa. Derek Fitzpatrick played great defense in front of Emery, blocking shots and keeping the front of the net clean of opposing players. Derek Griffin just missed adding one more in the end on a feed from DeRosa, but was denied.

Masco 3 Wilmington 2

In another Valley League game played earlier, the Wildcats dropped a close one to Masco by the score of 3-2. Mike Fay, who played well in goal for Wilmington kept the team in it until the end making several great saves.

Scoring for Wilmington in this matchup was Zachary Church and Brian Garrett with Dave Rizzo and Mark Walsh assisting on Church's goal and Derek DeRosa getting the helper on Garrett's.

The Mite A's wrapped up their last two parity games in the Dual State with back to back losses to Revere losing 6-3 and 4-0. Both games were very chippy to say the least. Mike Fay played in net for the first match and played well against Revere, who had a record of 8 and 0 in the parity round.

Scoring for Wilmington was Zachary Church on a feed from Mike Emery and Derek DeRosa scored on a nice clearing pass from Derek Fitzpatrick. Shane Foley added one in the end on a nice end to end rush. Mike Emery took the loss in net for the second game, but made many fine saves. The Wildcats kept pace with them in each game but with the parity, over the season starts with a clean record.

Wilmington Squirt C-2 works together

On Saturday, November 15, the Wilmington Squirt C-2 hockey team defeated Cambridge to gain their third win of the season. The game was filled with exciting non-stop action and hard hitting plays.

There were no goals scored in the first and second periods by either team, but there were many attempts. The defense was strong the entire game, with goalie Jimmy Good having another outstanding game. The defensemen Mark Bernardo, Michael Costa, Michael Hayes and Bobby Ryan all skated extra fast and out maneuvered the bigger, more physical Cambridge team.

The whole team worked together in the third period to come back from a zero to one deficit to beat Cambridge 4-1. The first and third goals were scored by Phillip Mugford. The second and fourth goals were scored by Jim Murray. Kyle Abel, Mark Bernardo, Andy Fish, Robby Riccio and Bobby Ryan all had assists. Bryan Raposo and Matthew Pijoan both played a strong game to help with the win.

The greater outdoors

A return to sanity

by ED LARKIN

Each year about this time, I am paroled from the daily grind to attempt to locate the most exciting of game animals in North America, the White-Tail Deer. Just like a kid at Christmas, I am bursting with anticipation. My first step into the woods is a return to temporary sanity.

This year I travel to Pittsburgh, New Hampshire for my annual pilgrimage. Known for large bucks, this mountainous terrain provides the hunter with beauty as well as a difficult, challenging hunt. This year's early snow should leave plenty of clues in the snow.

Every couple of years, I hunt a new location. After deciding on this new location I made several calls to lodges that catered to sportsmen. This allowed me to acquire a wealth of information. I always preach the need to scout your hunting area. The local connection is the next best thing. Also a good topographic map helps get the lay of the land.

I feel it is important to try new places. Each new experience provides a wealth of new knowledge. The simple act of foot travel through the woods will give you a lifetime of memories. Another wonderful pleasure is the fine people you meet. Most hunters enjoy sharing tips and stories.

Probably the best reason I look forward to hunting camp is renewing old friendships. The daily hustle dims the mind to the important things. It is on my hunting outings I relearn to appreciate the gifts given to me in this life.

I am mostly prepared. I laid out all my gear to ensure I have all the items needed for a safe, productive hunt. Most of all I checked my survival kit.

If I have the misfortune of spending a couple of days in the woods I have everything I need to live the high life.

I feel confident that my rifle is sighted correctly and my ammunition is the right type for the game I am hunting. I cleaned and walked in my hunting boots to ensure they are fit and comfortable. All that is left is to find a good buck.

Hopefully by the time you read this someone in my hunting camp has provided meat for the game table. If not, just having this brief period to enjoy the outdoors and good friends is worth the time spent.

It is game time all around New England. If you are going to deer camp have a safe, fun trip. Take time and breathe the fresh air and keep in mind if you don't protect this resource, it will not be here in the future.

Tewksbury Squirt IV's win again

The Tewksbury Squirt 4's faced off against a good N.H. East Squirt 3 team and took home a 5-3 victory To remain unbeaten in the Valley League.

Chris Myers started the scoring with a nice pass from Joe Demaio at the 5:57 mark of the first period. Moments later Pat Devito scored with help from Ryan Bishop to put Tewksbury up 2-0 at the end of one period. Midway through the second period Dean Bilodeau lit the lamp with the assist going to Chris Myers for the lone goal in the period.

Jeff Little opened the third period with a nice goal assisted by Dean Bilodeau to put Tewksbury up 4-0. Moments later N.H. East scored but Tewksbury came right back with Leo Keefe scoring and Ryan Bishop assisting on the play. With Tewksbury up 5-1, N.H. East scored two more goals to close out the scoring for the game.

The line of Colleen Fitzpatrick, Rob Rotundi and Vanessa Tambarello played well and created many opportunities, but could not bet the puck to bound their way. The goalie tandem consisting of Andrew McGuinness and Larry Bruno continued to play solid in net for the team. The defense led by Jason Tully, Joe Demaio, Bob O'Leary and Jeff Cooney played strong to contribute to the win.

Tewksbury Pee Wee A's tie Saugus, 3-3

Tewksbury Pee Wee A tied Saugus 3-3. The Pee Wee A team coached by George DeRoche, assisted by Bill Gosse, Bob Fitzmaurice and Bill Fabiano have completed the parity schedule in both the Dual State and Valley leagues with a record of 4-6-0.

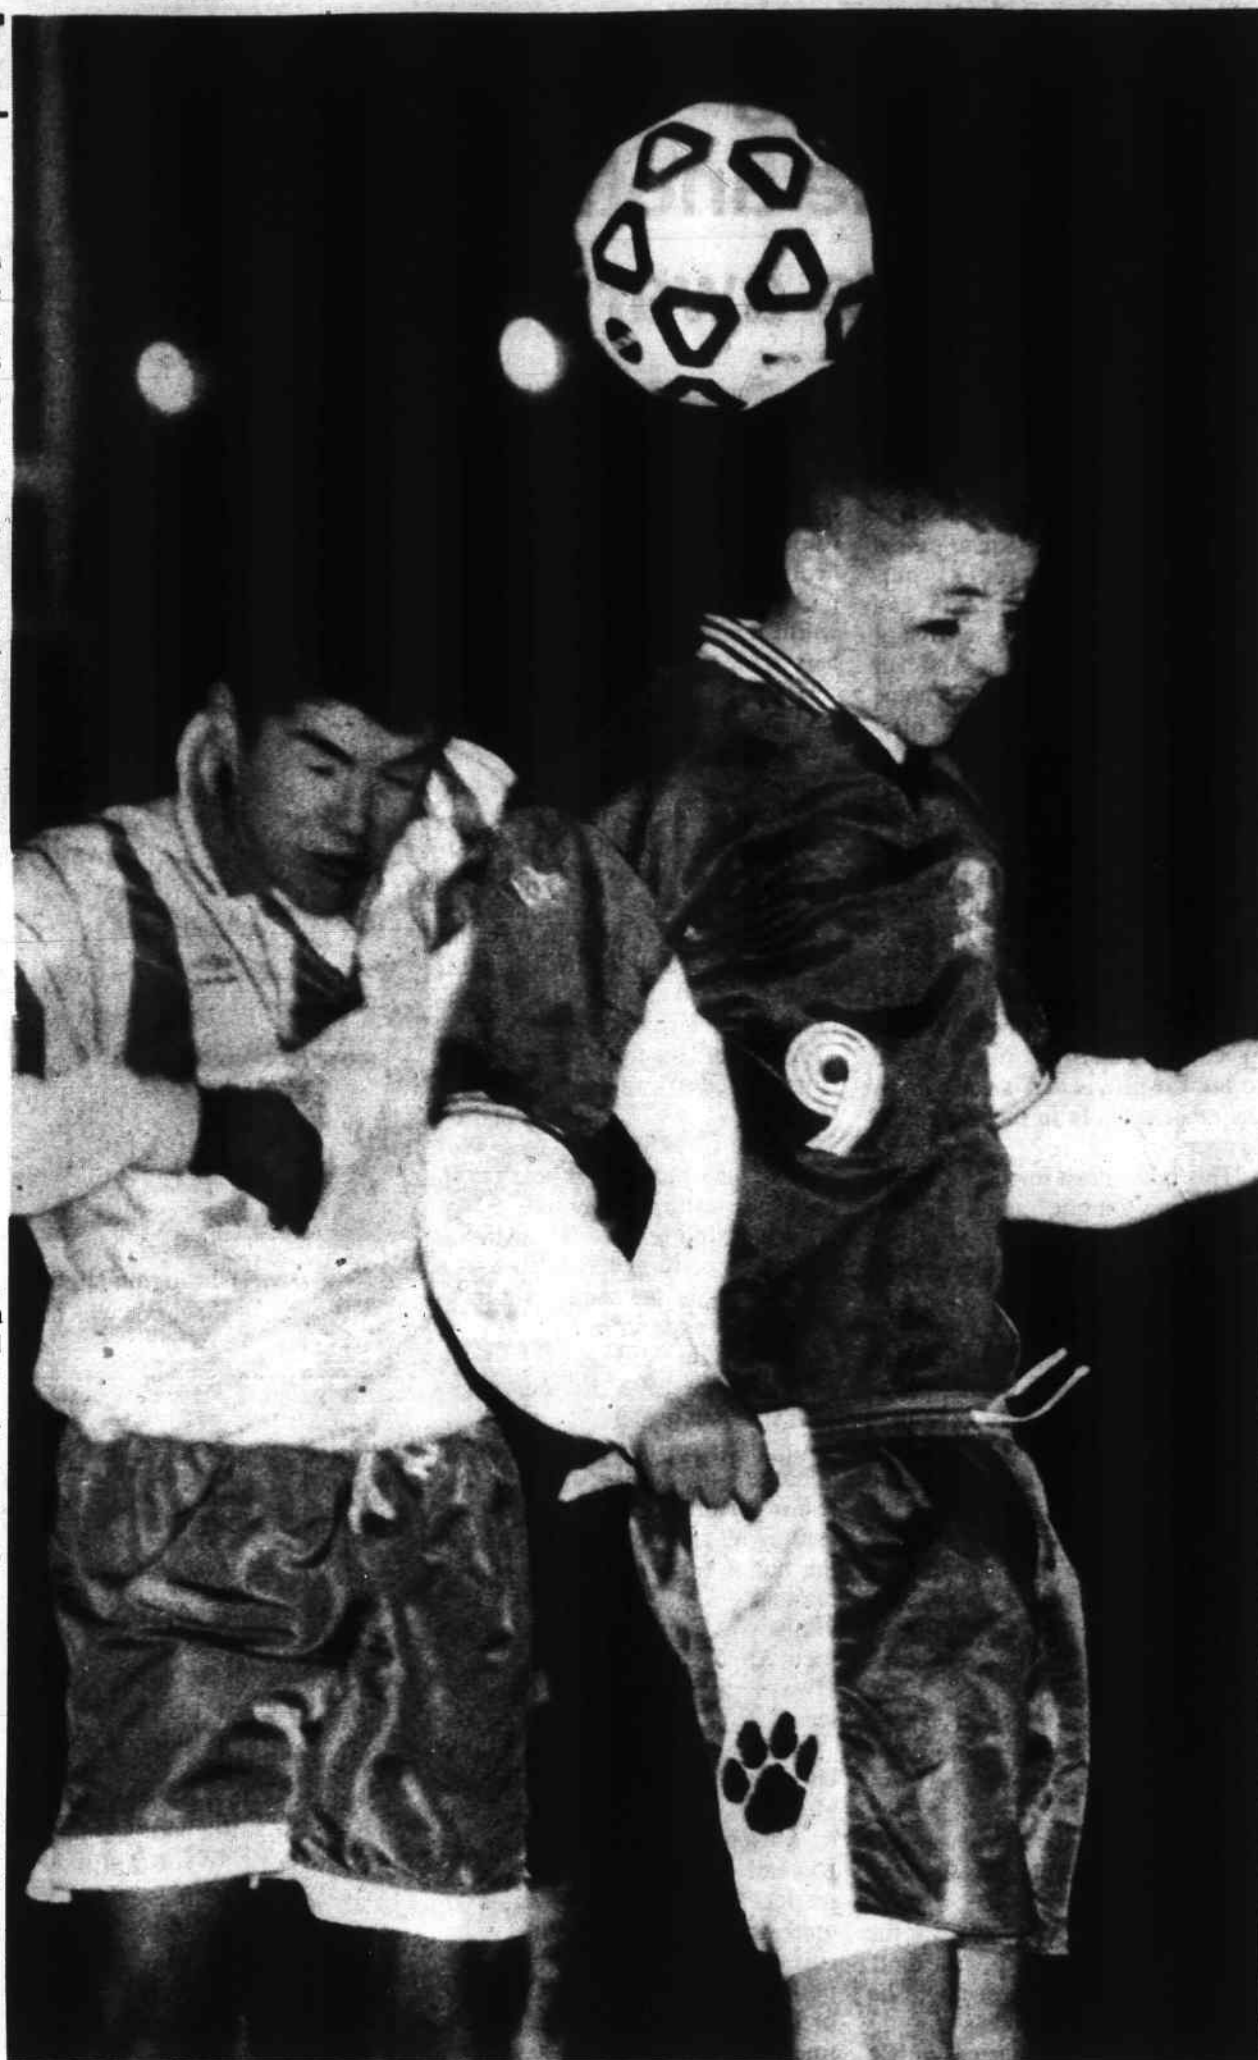

Coach DeRoche's team opened the Valley schedule November 2 at Merrimack against Saugus. Tewksbury opened the scoring in the first period with a goal by Jim Broderick, assisted by Brian McGrath and Shawn Scott.

In the second period each team scored once. Tewksbury's Brian McGrath scored a one timer from in front with some great passing from Jimmy Scanlon and Shawn Scott.

The third period started with Tewksbury leading 2-1. Saugus tied at 2-2 one minute into the third period. Donny MacLaren came right back on the next shift to put Tewksbury up by one, 3-2. Donny's goal assisted by Jim Broderick. Saugus tied the score at 3-3 at the six minute mark. The defense of Jimmy Broderick, Bill Malvanity, Ryan Ducom and Mike Ferrick held Saugus in check along with strong goal tending from Bill Fabiano and Mike Collins.

by Mike Burns
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech Rams continued their march towards the Commonwealth League, large school championship, Monday, with an impressive 36-0 victory over Tyngsboro.

Shawsheen's outstanding running back, James Brothers, opened the game by scoring touchdowns on the first two times he carried the ball. Brothers first rush resulted in 12-yard opening touchdown. Brothers next run produced a 73-yard touchdown, giving the Rams a 14-0 lead early in the first quarter. Later in the first half, Ram Tim Zanelli scored the third Shawsheen touchdown on a fine 25-yard run.

As has been the case all season, the Shawsheen defense was outstanding. On one defensive series, linebackers Brothers and Jim Goglia made back to back quarterback sacks setting up a fourth and long punting situation for Tyngsboro. Goglia blocked the punt, giving the Ram's the ball on the Tyngsboro 17-yard line. Three plays later, Goglia scored on a 2-yard touchdown run, giving the Ram's a 28-0 halftime lead.

Receiving the second half kickoff, Kevin Belanger's fine return gave the Rams good field position. However, the Tyngsboro defense stiffened, forcing the Rams into a fourth and three situation. Shawsheen faked the punt, with Jim Goglia carrying the ball to the Tyngsboro 24-yard line. A Kevin Mendonca to Belanger 18-yard pass completion gave the Ram's a first down at the Tyngsboro 6-yard line. James Brothers rushed for his third touchdown of the game.

Leading 36-0, Shawsheen continued their strong running attack. Rob Cassidy, Tim Zanelli and Brian LeBlanc moved the ball well and threatened to score, only to be stopped by a fumble on the 2-yard line. Tyngsboro's only serious offensive threat ended with Matt Osterberg interception late in the game.

Shawsheen's defense continues their outstanding play. Through nine games, this unit has only allowed 82 points. Lead by Joe Roux, Dan McCarthy, Jim Goglia, James Brothers, Chris MacDonald and Paul Cauldwell, the Shawsheen defense has shut out the opposition in five games.

The Ram's final game is against Greater Lowell on Thanksgiving at 10:15. This game, played at Greater Lowell, will determine Shawsheen's Commonwealth league championship.

Boys soccer team blanks Norwell minutes to go in the first half. Norwell was displaying awesome passing down in the Cats end. At the left side of the field, about 30 yards out from keeper Flynn, Norwell gave a give-and-go pass that beat several Cats defenders. As the Norwell player was coming in, now down the middle of the field, John Betts of Wilmington, not only caught up to him, but stopped the ball, changed its direction and got it out of the Cats end.

"I was all ready for the shot," Flynn said. "That was a great play - our defense has been so strong all season long...that was a huge, huge play."

Jeff Arciero also continued the Cats effective defensive play when he broke up a handful of what appeared to be good scoring chances for Norwell.

For the third straight state tournament game, Wilmington turned it up a notch in the second half. In the prior two wins, the Cats scored either the game winning goal or the tying goal within the first three minutes of the second half. Against Norwell, Wilmington dominated the first 14 minutes of the second half, pelting three hard shots on net, which doesn't include Dan Sweet's header that clanged off the crossbar, but none of those chances were finished off. Speaking of Sweet, the junior played arguably his best soccer game by not only breaking up a lot of Norwell play, but his speed and heads up play paid off dividends for the team.

Anyway, after those first 14 minutes or so, the game was more-or-less neutral play for the next ten minutes until Heigham scored. After the goal, Wilmington mounted the pressure when Dennis Ingram's beautiful header was caught. But with about eight minutes left to go in the game, Norwell had a few chances to tie the game, but with no hesitation of Flynn, those chances were nullified.

"I knew that if I hesitated at all, that I would get burnt. So I came out trying to kick the ball away from them and that's what I did," Flynn described of his tactics when he came racing out of the box several times to beat an opponent to a loose ball.

Marian's best chance to tie the game came with about 90 seconds to go, when, in a flurry in front of Flynn, Betts stopped a hard shot off his leg and cleared it out.

"[Betts] played a very good game," Scanlon said. "This was another team oriented win. We don't have any superstars on this team," Scanlon said.

Sean Cahill, another half-back who played his usual tremendous game, added, "I've never experienced anything like this before. It was a lot of pressure, but just the excitement alone makes it worthwhile. It feels really good, it's an honor to be going to the state championship game."

their 21 games and have allowed just 18. Senior goaltender Paul Fiaccone has been solid in between the pipes for the past two seasons. In front of him are two solid defenders. David Reid, a 60, 185 pound member of the West Bay State Soccer club, has been inserted as season's sweeper right after the former sweeper went down with a broken fibula. Fiske said Reid has done quite well.

Also in the mix for Gateway, is forward Tim Cranston who has 26 goals this season and a transfer from Brazil, Todd Gaultieri, "who plays wherever he wants."

"We have some really good players on this team, but we don't rely on any one player," Fiske said. "I'm not surprised that we're here, because we lost in the Western Finals last year and we lost just four seniors. Everyone thinks that we should be here, and a lot of the times the better teams don't win these games because of bad breaks, a great goaltender or a different style of defense that you haven't seen. In one of tournament games, we outshot St. Joe's of Pittsfield, 26-6 and luckily the kid let one go by him."

As for Scanlon, he is surprised that his club has made it this far.

"Whenever a team makes it to the state championship game, you have to be surprised," he said. "We've had an incredible amount of luck go our way to get here. During our season, I never thought we were a dominating team, I thought we were a solid team, but not a dominating team. All of games were 3-2 or 1-0, we never blew anyone away."

"I was most concerned with our first draw, when I saw we had Wayland I was heart sick. [T.J.] Flynn saved our bacon in that game and [Justin] Vallas was able to save us also with two goals. I have coached other good teams that have lost in the first round and when we beat Wayland, that not only was a huge win for us, but our confidence really grew with that win and it has continued that way with since."

To get to this point, Wilmington has defeated Wayland, 2-1 in triple overtime, Rockport, 3-0, Hamilton-Wenham, 2-1, Marian 3-1 and Norwell 1-0. As for Gateway, they have defeated East Longmeadow 4-0, Pathfinder High School of Palmer, 2-0, St. Joe's of Pittsfield, 1-0 in overtime, Groton-Dunstable 3-2 in overtime and Smith Academy, 6-2.

"Since 1986 our community has been behind the game of soccer," Fiske said. "The youth program started then and now its up to 450 kids ages 10-14 who are playing soccer. That has really helped us - especially with the 1990 team. In the past two years we've got lights and we have a really nice facility."

We graduated just four seniors from last year's team and we have 10 seniors, 9 juniors and 4 sophomores who make up this team. We've had a week-and-a-half off, but we'll be ready for Wilmington."

And Dick Scanlon knows his club will ready too.

"We have a good defensive team. But defense just isn't the sweeper and the stopper, it's the entire team. It starts with the forwards coming back to the midfielders and so on. When we get in trouble is when the forwards or halfbacks don't come back. If the entire team plays defense, then we will do fine. We will be ready," Scanlon said.

With the game Friday night at WPI at 7:30, there is one aspect that both teams will not be accustomed too. That is artificial turf.

"I think it might bother us," Scanlon said. "It's not the same game. If a ball goes in the air on artificial turf it goes 15 feet, rather than six on grass. You have to back-up on the ball, rather than play it real close on artificial grass and the passes are a lot faster and they are shorter because on the artificial surface the ball zooms. It's crazy to think that you played 23 games on regular grass and the biggest game of the season you're playing on artificial grass, it's crazy."

If the game is canceled on Friday due to weather or field conditions, it will be Saturday at 6:15 at Boston University. If that should be called off, there will not be a championship game, as both teams will be co-champs.

Mite C's win 2-1

Backed by the great goal tending of Cory Tobin, the Mite C's defeated a tough Haverhill B team by the score of 2-1. Tobin consistently turned aside Haverhill scoring opportunities. Defensemen Michael Wilson, Sean Fay, Michael Robarge and Nick Robarge did a great job of breaking up the Haverhill attack.

The C's struck early in the first period as Michael Robarge banged in a loose puck.

It wasn't until near the end of the second period that Wilmington scored again. This time Jason Yocmelakis shot one in unassisted.

Midway through the third period Haverhill was able to sneak one by Tobin. In an exciting game, the C's held on to win!

John Betts, a defender on the Eastern Mass. Division III Champions, saved at least one goal because of his efforts on Thursday's 1-0 victory over Norwell. (Photo by Bill Ryerson)

THE WORLD'S BEST-KEPT BEAUTY SECRETS

BEAUTY BEGINS WITH ATTITUDE

ty is attitude," Irons said.

"When you see great beauties on the street, they look like everyday women, she added. "They just know how to package themselves."

Irons started her modeling career at age 13 and worked her way through college with a career in high fashion that took Irons from her hometown of Peabody to the salons of New York and Paris.

"I aspired to be a journalist," Irons said. "While the other models were sitting and giggling, I took notes."

The notes that Irons took were on the lessons she was learning from the top stylists in the world about how to feel and look beautiful.

After college, Irons eventually was able to practice her career in journalism becoming an investigative reporter and moving on to her own syndicated radio program on the Talk America Network. Her talk program was carried on 400 radio stations nationwide.

At present Irons can be seen on Good Morning America as a regular consultant. She has been labeled as the "real thing" by the GMA staff.

Irons said that before she appears on the show, any tips that she will be giving out are tested to make sure that they actually work.

She is working on a second book after Beauty Secrets hit Beauty Secrets to S-4

WAKEFIELD RESIDENT Diane Irons is a model, respected author and regular beauty consultant on the Good Morning America TV show.

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

Beauty is only skin deep is not a cliché that model, investigative reporter and author Diane Irons subscribes to.

The Wakefield based author of "The World's Best-Kept Beauty Secrets: What really works in Beauty, Diet and Fashion" (Sourcebooks) starts her easy to read and amusing tome with the idea that beauty begins with attitude.

"The models, actresses and celebrities I have been privileged to work with have one trait that causes them to stand out in a crowd - the attitude they project to the world," Irons wrote.

According to Irons, many potentially beautiful women are holding onto some displaced myths and have made the decision to throw away beauty, health and diet routines because they are too self-indulgent or too expensive. She makes the claim that beauty can be attained by giving oneself 15-minutes per day and by using some very simple methods.

One very simple method that Irons proclaims is to stand against a wall "with head shoulder blades and heels touching, and buttocks pushed into the wall. Walk away without changing position"

She adds, "A great posture is a wonderful beginning for your attitude adjustment."

Irons said, in a telephone interview, that the whole idea of the book is to disprove the myth that being beautiful is an expensive proposition.

About The Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

'A horse is a horse, of course, of course'

It's a dog's life

"North Reading is about to find out whether it has a dog problem or a people problem," notes the "North Reading Transcript."

"By a vote of 71 to 13, Town Meeting approved the town's first 'pooper scooper' bylaw, requiring residents to clean up after their dogs in public."

"When the bylaw is approved by the Attorney General's office, dog owners will be required to clean up after their pets 'on any sidewalk, street, park or other public area' as well as private property owned by other persons."

"In fact, the bylaw prohibits owners from appearing in public with their dogs 'without the means of removal of any feces' left by the animal."

"Violators will be subject to a written warning from police for the first offense. Subsequent violations will earn a $25 fine.

"This will help to keep the stuff out of the parks," said Selectman Ernest Doucette, citing numerous complaints of dogs leaving deposits behind at the Little League fields, the high school track, etc.

"David Osgood, 12 Bow Street, attempted to amend the bylaw to include horse feces and waste, saying 'it's a much larger problem.'"

"Moderator Klaus Kubierschky initially accepted Osgood's amendment but then reversed himself, saying it was outside the parameters of the original article."

"A horse is not a dog," pointed out Trish Colella, 237 Haverhill Street. "Although sometimes they are. It depends on who owns them."

A garden delight

"Without any taxpayers' expense, Winchester is going to get a new garden in the heart of its downtown," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Though the garden, between the library and Mill Pond, will not be visible until next year, the public library is about to begin Phase I of its landscaping project."

"If the newly renovated library is, as Rosemary Sullivan, chair of the library's landscaping committee, says, 'a jewel of a building,' then the landscaping will be its setting. As a good setting enhances the beauty of a jewel, the library landscaping is intended to beautify not only the library but the entire civic center."

Beauty Secrets

the heights of seven weeks on best seller lists.

Irons noted that one of the best kept beauty secrets in her book came from her career as an investigative reporter.

She writes: "My favorite mask is the result of my most memorable investigative reporting story. I had been informed that those very expensive spas that charged hundreds of dollars for 'herbal wraps' were using mud. Now the inside 'scoop' is that these 'chichi' places were not using some exotic mud from the Dead Sea, but a formula created from kitty litter.

According to Irons, the formula is based on the accepted theory of 'clay masks' being good for detoxifying the skin. She explained that the kitty litter used as a mask should come from a bag labeled as 100 percent natural clay.

According to Irons, women and men both have the ability to look good and feel beautiful. One of the first steps she said that people have to take is to "...take control of their weight."

According to Irons, this is also something that can be done with a very easy and inexpensive processes.

"Start drinking ice water," Irons prescribed. "That is the secret to weight loss success."

In her book she explains that the body needs to use more than 100 calories just to warm itself to room temperature and to be able to absorb the water.

"You are actually using more calories than you are taking in," Irons wrote.

She claims that people spend way too much money on expensive cosmetics and then don't keep their skin properly clean.

Irons secret to keeping the skin clean is not to over clean it.

She notes that all a woman needs to do when she wakes up in the morning is to revitalize the moisturizer that was used before she went to bed.

Irons said that the best way to do that is to splash your face with warm water or milk.

"Milk is a natural acid and will allow your face to receive a natural acid treatment," Irons wrote.

According to Irons, many of the chemical acids on the market can cause damage to the skin. She recommends using such products as pineapple juice, lemon juice, tomatoes and most citrus fruits.

In the interview Irons warned that one of the biggest dangers on the market today, according to the New England Journal of Medicine, is whitening toothpaste. She warns that the products could be carcinogenic and may even cause fillings to fall out.

Irons' recommendation, "Burnt toast will whiten teeth."

Irons even has some good grooming tips for men. The first of these requires a trip to the hardware store to purchase butchers wax.

According to Irons, most men need to apply the product liberally and often to their shoes and belts.

"It works better than anything to keep shoes protected from snow and weather," she said.

Hands are another area that are as important to men as they are to women, according to Irons. Her recommendation in this area is to drop two denture cleaning tablets into a bowl of water and to soak the fingernails in them.

The solution can also be used to clean jewelry such as rings.

For men that are "folically challenged (read: going bald)" Irons recommends rubbing cayenne pepper over the head. She explained that the heat from the solution will break-up waxy build-ups and allow the hair to come through again.

The book is also full of many appetizing recipes that are good for the reader, such as baked pizza, with only 95 calories and an apple crisp.

And if puffy skin around the eyes is your problem you might want to read Best kept Beauty Secrets and find out why Irons thinks that Preparation H or your babies teething ring might be the solution.

Guys and Dolls in Winchester

Winchester Cooperative Theater will roll the dice and come up a winner with their fall production of Guys and Dolls, one of Broadway's most hilarious shows.

This comedy is based on a Damon Runyon short story which describes the unlikely romance between a pure-at-heart urban missionary and a slick Broadway gambler. The show's second romantic story line involves Nathan Detroit and Miss Adelaide, who have been engaged for fourteen years.

The curtain will go up on this musical fable the weekend of November 21. 85 talented actors and actresses have been in rehearsal since September learning song and dance routines under the direction of Catherine Alexander, the Cooperative Theater's director and co-founder.

The musical features memorable Frank Loesser music and lyrics, such as: "Bushel and a Peck", "Luck Be a Lady", and "If I were a Bell".

Performances of Guys and Dolls are Friday, November 21 at 7:30pm; Saturday, November 22 at 2pm and 7:30pm and Sunday, November 23 at 2pm at the McCall Middle School Auditorium, 458 Main Street, Winchester.

Tickets for reserved seating are $7. Call 721-PLAY or send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your order to Winchester Cooperative Theatre, P.O. Box 443, Winchester, MA 01890.

In the 'little red schoolhouse'

"A piece of Tewksbury history was preserved with the dedication of the Ella E. Flemings school on Andover Road," notes the "Tewksbury Town Crier."

"The Tewksbury Historical Society officially dedicated the little red schoolhouse as the Ella E. Flemings School.

"Flemings was an integral part of Tewksbury history. She was a teacher at the North School from 1884 to 1904 and was elected Principal of the Foster School the following year. She held that status for almost twenty years. She was admired and loved by many and when she retired in the 1920's, the Tewksbury School Committee voted to name the school in North Tewksbury after her."

MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA QUESTION: How high and wide are the netted goals in the game of ice hockey? And, for bonus points, how high and wide are the netted goals in the game of field hockey? Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•Need a clue or two to help solve the trivia mystery? Too bad. No hints this week.

•A local publication handed out its Scholastic Sports Awards last weekend, and READING MEMORIAL HIGH SCHOOL finished second in Division 2, behind Holliston. WINCHESTER placed 12th, while WAKEFIELD was next at 13th. In the Division 4 category, LYNNFIELD placed third, while WILMINGTON was sixth.

There are openings for girls and boys teams in grades 5,6,7,8 and 9. Teams on all levels of ability are welcome. Efforts are made to match teams on the same ability level.

Each year the 200-team field includes teams from six New England states, plus New York. All entries are accepted on a first-come basis.

The following is a list of sites and dates:

•Nov. 28-30 at Wheaton College - seventh grade boys, eighth grade girls;

Managed care

Information memorandum available

Today managed care is dominating this country's health care reform debate. In many meetings and discussions, the question of the appropriate roles of state and area agencies on aging in managed care has been widely discussed. In an effort to respond to the issues and questions which have been raised, The Department of Health and Human Services in Washington, D.C., has published an information memorandum. This memorandum was designed to provide guidance to the public and to elder organizations that are responding to new issues they are encountering in health and long-term-care delivery systems.

Managed care has three basic dimensions: the payment mechanism, the organizations of services and the delivery of care. It is important to recognize that capitation is not synonymous with managed care, and that managing costs does not guarantee that care will be managed. Since "managed care" is a continuously evolving approach in how America pays for and organized its health care, it is difficult to provide precise information about the many variations in the practice of "managed care."

Managed care can be thought of as some combination of an insurance mechanism and health care delivery system which covers health care costs in return for the premium paid. Each plan has its own network of providers such as doctors, hospitals, skilled-nursing facilities and other health care providers.

Premium costs and copayments for services received vary from plan to plan and the circumstances of enrollee. The range of plans available varies considerably in different parts of the county.

The managed care alternative to free-for service medicine offers the potential for more appropriate services and continity of health care at lower cost, but its incentives to control health care costs makes inadequate access, under treatment, and inappropriate care of particular concern to older persons and persons with disabilities.

Mystic Valley Elder Services "SHINE" (Serving Health Insurance Needs of Elders) program is dedicated to providing elders with accurate, unbiased information regarding health insurance options through a network of trained volunteers.

SHINE offers free, confidential one-on-one counseling to those age 60 or older and their family members. The program is founded and managed by the Executive Office of Elder

Affairs and can assist with determining if a managed care health plan will suit your individual needs.

If you have additional questions about the SHINE program or managed care, call Holly Kisler, SHINE Coordinator at Mystic Valley Elder Services, 781-324-7442, Ext. 212.

Reading's Pearl Street School, which had been closed for over twelve years, reopened last October as Reading's first and only assisted living community. The renovated school and connecting new addition now house over 80 senior citizens.

In addition to the 86 studio, one- and two-bedroom apartments, Longwood Place offers a full complement of supportive services that allow residents to remain both safe and independent.

Three meals-per-day are served in an elegant dining room, weekly housekeeping and laundry services are provided, and an in-house emergency response system lets residents access assistance with the push of a button. Residents also have use of a variety of community areas including a country kitchen, general store, private dining room, beauty salon/barber shop, and a full schedule of activities offer a variety of social and educational opportunities.

Edward Levitt of Reading

Senior Living Limited Partnership made a celebratory toast extending his thanks and appreciation to Longwood residents and their families, staff members, and the Town of Reading, for making the assisted living community's first year such a success. Mr. Levitt reported that over 90 percent of the units are occupied and that a waiting list has been established for individuals who are eligible for the "affordable" spaces. Eighteen of Longwood Place's studio and one-bedroom units are reserved for seniors who qualify for the Group Adult Foster Care or Elder Choice subsidies.

Wakefield's Betty Shea

One W.W. II silent hero

If you saw this town's July 4th parade you may remember seeing a 1946 bright red Playboy convertible with grand marshal Elizabeth (Betty) Shea leading the parade and waving.

The diminutive mother of six children was almost lost in a sea of family faces that bright, warm July day when the Wakefield Independence Day Committee and all Americans honored Betty Shea. If the Playboy car she rode in is a classic, the same can be said of this modest 75 year-old grandmother who enlisted in the Navy (W.A.V.E.S.) during WWII.

The story behind a little blue Navy Unit Commendation ribbon/bar with red and white stripes on its edges makes you want to stand up and cheer for this tiny lady who kept a Navy secret for 50 years-she couldn't even tell family or friends about her work which was instrumental in ending the war in the Pacific Theatre.

Betty grew up in Waltham, one of three daughters of John and Mary Quigley. She graduated from Waltham High School in 1940 and took business courses at Burdett College. Later she went to work for the Boston and Maine Railroad as a stenographer. Betty used to ride into work with her father and one day she told him; "Dad, if they (the Navy) don't call you I'm enlisting." John Quigley was a chief in the Navy in France during WWI and felt he would be called to serve in WWII.

"I told dad on the way home that I had my preliminary induction papers for the Navy. That was January 1, 1943. He had tears in his eyes."

What was it like for a 21 year old woman to leave home for the first time with the understanding that she might never return? Today the frail 75 year old grandmother leans forward to balance herself on an aluminum walker and says, "It was quite an experience to tell you the truth. We were the first and second battalions to enter Hunter College, Bronx, N.Y. We left South Station (Boston) by train at the end of February or early March in 1943. It was my first time away from home for any length of time. We marched to everything. When Betty Quigley heard the command, hit the deck at 6am she felt right at home. Betty says, "My dad, (an old Navy man) used to tell us, (his three girls) to 'hit the deck' (every morning) at home." After completing basic training Betty Quigley was assigned to Mt. Vernon Seminary in Northwest Washington, D.C. where she underwent a battery of tests to determine her skills/abilities.

Betty found her courses at Burdett in typing and stenography useful she says, "Nobody talked about what they were doing or learning (while we were) in the barracks."

Later the energetic young lady was assigned to W.A.V.E.S. Quarters D, Naval Communications/Intelligence, near American University, Washington, D.C. She had the rank of Specialist Q First Class, comparable to sergeant, and her work was classified top secret. Betty Quigley worked as a cryptanalyst decoding Japanese messages. How important was her work?

Fifty four years later the petite grandmother with brown eyes says, "I realized, we all did, that it was very important. When you take an espionage oath you know it's very important. It involved using the Japanese alphabet, Karma; decoding messages intercepted by (our) stations and relayed via radio/telegraph. Everything (we worked on) was put in a burn bag and the Marines picked it up every morning. I worked as a cryptanalyst with men and women (some of whom) were civilians. It was mind boggling."

Were there any times when Navy security people or the enemy tried to get classified information from you? The 97 pound grandmother with gray hair says, "I was sitting with a friend of mine, a submariner, in a cafe in downtown Washington. Two men dressed in Navy uniform sent over a drink and they came over to our table. I kicked Lloyd (so as to clue him not to say anything of substance)." Betty doesn't, to this day, know whether these men were trying to get classified information.

It wasn't until 1995, the 50th anniversary of the end of WWII, that Betty Shea's work and that of her unit became declassified and made public.

At a White House Ceremony in 1995 President Clinton said, "It is fair to say that because of the work of a small team of Naval communication specialists between 1943-1945 that the United States was ultimately successful in defeating Japan and bringing peace once again to our world. "These individuals, men and women, deserve the thanks of a grateful nation."

What did Betty Shea think of this national recognition for a secret well kept and a job well done? The lady who is awaiting a hip replacement and has been a Wakefield resident for 40 years says, "That was nice. After all these years that was a decent gesture on his part. My son, (Lt. Col. Kevin Shea, recently retired from the U.S. Army) sent me a news clipping about the German enigma, a cipher machine, (being declassified). He wrote me, 'Mom, you can talk about it (your work in decoding Japanese messages) now.'"

One of Betty Shea's daughters, Mrs. Patrice Donahue of Reading, remembers growing up at home. Patrice is thrilled that her mom was chosen to be this year's grand marshal. The Reading speech pathologist says, "It was great having her be the grand marshal. I have two daughters, and I said 'Look at your grandmother-see what she did'?" Patrice and all Betty's loved ones remember the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) television production, The Code Breakers, which aired over a year ago.

It explained exactly what Betty Shea's unit did and how that work helped defeat the Japanese. What did this 75 year old mother of six children feel when she was chosen grand marshal of this year's 4th of July parade? She leans forward to balance on her walker and her face tells me she is in pain. "I was honored. I didn't think I was in good enough physical condition to participate. All of my children were on the reviewing stand with me except Barry (Shea) who couldn't be here. He was on a shakedown cruise for a new tanker. (Barry is a chief engineer with Mobil Oil Co.). Betty Shea's love of and pride in her family shines through her pain; Kevin came on from Kansas with his wife and three sons; Jacqueline Collins lives in Woburn and is a nurse-educator; Patrice Donahue lives in Reading and is a speech pathologist; Dr. Maryann Shea-Sachs of Framingham is a medical doctor and a lieutenant in the Navy reserve; and Hilary Di Luigi lives in Saugus. Betty Shea has 14 grandchildren. Her late Husband Jack Shea, who she met while they both were employed by the Boston and Maine Railroad, died in 1990.

Betty Shea's answer to a question on her exemplary military service tells a lot about her as a person, and how she was raised by her parents.

Why did she volunteer to serve in the Navy in the middle of WWII? The tiny lady dressed in a pink leisure suit lets us in on a little secret. This one is written in English and doesn't have to be intercepted or decoded; "My parents had no sons to go to war to defend our country so when the Navy started taking girls I decided that it was my duty to follow in my father's footsteps. So I signed up."

Perhaps Frank P. Spencer, grand parade marshal for Wakefield's 1996 Independence Day parade, said it best when he wrote about Betty Shea in a letter to the editor published in a local newspaper.

Mr. Spencer wrote, in part, "My biggest thrill I had was when I met her in person on the reviewing stand July 4th. She was everything I thought she would be; charming, delightful, modest and proud. She was really proud wearing the one little ribbon she wore on her collar. You would think she was wearing the Medal of Honor. (People) like Betty Shea are our silent heroes. She can now tell the world what she did in WWII and I hope she does. Betty Shea has many titles; mother (six children), grandmother, Navy veteran, American, patriot, but above all she is a lady with class."

"911" provides quick, reliable service

Since its inception in 1968, 9-1-1 has provided a quick, reliable method for reporting emergencies in most areas of the country. The service is designed to provide the fastest possible service in urgent medical emergencies, such as heart attacks, strokes and aneurysms, as well as emergencies in which the patient should not be moved, such as spinal injuries, says Larry Mottley, MD, FACEP, director of the Emergency Medical Services at Boston Medical Center.

"If you think you ought to call 9-1-1, then you probably should," he advises. "Don't let embarrassment or denial make you change your mind."

Since large metropolitan areas field more 9-1-1 calls than their suburban or rural neighbors, many cities have developed a formal telephone triage protocol, what Mottley terms a "decision tree," to cope with the large volume of calls. "The system is designed to decrease the wait on the line and provide the fastest possible service to the most urgent cases. In a serious medical emergency, the ambulance is out of the door and on its way within one minute from the time the call is placed," he says.

The first fact the dispatcher will ascertain is the location and type of emergency, which will determine if the call is routed to the Fire Department, the police or Emergency Medical Services. Keep in mind that the majority of major cities have "enhanced 9-1-1" services, which can pinpoint the site from which you are calling. In the event that you are not in the same place as the patient, make sure that the dispatcher knows immediately where to send the ambulance.

If you are routed to EMS, an Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) will ask a short list of basic medical questions to help them determine the seriousness of the situation and how best to respond. "Don't worry that answering these questions will hold up the dispatch of the ambulance."

Their first priority is to send an ambulance to take care of the patient, and talking to the caller does not impede this," says Mottley. Once you have answered the EMT's questions, you may be given some basic advice on how to help the patient while waiting for the ambulance. Sometimes these instructions will be vital to the patient, so make sure to remain on the line until instructed to hang up.

If possible, someone should be outside ready to flag down the ambulance because it is crucial that the vehicle locate the patient quickly. You may be instructed to hang up so you can be outside if no third person is available.

Finally, if the patient has a preexisting relationship with a particular hospital you should request that the ambulance service take the patient to that hospital. Unless there is an urgent medical reason requiring transport to the nearest hospital, the ambulance should comply. Patients get better care when they interact with doctors whom they know. They're probably happier about being served by familiar faces as well," noted Mottley.

Some claim that the 9-1-1 service is abused; however, Mottley is skeptical of this. "Big cities have slightly more overuse of 9-1-1 than more rural areas, but recent studies have shown that there's really very little abuse of the system," he says. "The truth is simply that most people have good judgment and use the system accordingly."

"Boomerabilia" the latest buying craze

The demand for "boomerabilia," favorite childhood playthings of aging baby boomers, those Americans born between 1946 and 1964 has hit the doll collector market, according to a recent NFO study commissioned by Doll Reader Magazine. "Until now," says Carolyn B. Cook, publisher and editor of Doll Reader, "there has been no definitive research on the U.S. doll market. Recognizing an industry-wide need for information about doll buyers, Doll Reader conducted the first ever consumer doll market study."

The study revealed several major buying trends, including the quest for "boomerabilia." Demand for dolls of the 50s and 60s is increasing. Manufacturers are responding to this demand with dolls targeted to the boomer generation such as the new Mattel Barbie and Ken, Star Trek Gift Set, scheduled to hit the market in August.

Interested in ethnic dolls is also booming, according to study. African-American, Native American and other ethnic dolls are more available than ever. Sales are not limited to ethnic consumers. Doll consumers in general are looking for something different.

The doll industry has changed drastically. "Doll creators are vying for the consumer's dollar," says Cook. "Up until 12 to 15 years ago, doll collecting was limited to antique and mass produced dolls. Now artists have added a new dimension with one of a kind and limited edition dolls." According to the research, approximately 5.4 million households make up the doll consumer market. Forty four percent of these describe themselves as being "doll collector households."

December 4 through 7

WEDNESDAY/THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 20, 1997-PAGE S-9

LITTLE LAUREN DEMARCO, age 2, of Woburn, greets a stuffed Frosty the Snowman during annual Craft Fair '97 at St. Joseph Hall in Wakefield. Looking on is Lorraine Brutti of Burlington (who made Frosty) and Lauren's mom, Mary Ellen DeMarco.

Bay Colony dog show in Boston

The Bay Colony Cluster Dog Show is back at the Bayside Exposition Center from Thursday, December 4 through Sunday, December 7. Sponsored by PEDIGREE brand dog foods, The Bay Colony Cluster Dog Show features over 3,000 pedigree pooches competing daily for "Top Dog" honors within their respective groups and breeds.

Over 30,000 people are expected to attend this four day event to see over 130 breeds of dogs; among them will be such favorites as cocker spaniels, golden retrievers and Labrador retrievers, as well as exotic pedigrees such as Bedlington Terriers, Chinese Crested, Rhodesian Ridgeback and the newest American Kennel Club (AKC) breeds, the Australian Kelpies and the Cavalier King Charles Spaniel.

Dogs from all over the country will compete daily in conformation classes, a process of elimination that ultimately awards only one dog the "Best in show" trophy. Each day will be presented by different dog clubs from within the Bay Colony cluster, and each day offers a different mix of competition and special events.

Throughout the weekend, dogs will also compete in obedience Trials, which score a dog's ability to perform exercises such as retrieving, jumping and scent discrimination. These exercises are useful for both show dogs and house pets. Also, dogs may take the AKC's Canine Good Citizen Test, a certification program that fosters responsible dog ownership, canine good manners, and good social behavior.

Most popular with spectators are agility events (a timed competition where dogs work their way over and through a series of obstacles), and fascinating demonstrations by Fidelco guide dogs obedience dogs, assistance dogs, and even search and rescue dogs who find people on land and under the water using their advanced sense of smell. The weekend will feature special appearances by the Junior Handlers of Greater Boston Drill Team, "Dance To The Music" demonstrations by the Pup-Peroni Canine Freestylers, and a "rescue parade" featuring greyhounds and other breeds who have a "new leash on life."

Dog lovers will be in holiday shopping heaven, with more than 100 concession booths displaying every type of dog-related merchandise imaginable, including hand-knitted sweaters, specialty t-shirts, hats, grooming supplies, unique pet treats, handmade dog toys, pet safety products, dog beds and even fine jewelry and artwork.

If you are looking for information about a particular breed before making the big leap to dog ownership, approximately 20 public service booths will provide information about breeder referral, dog-related careers, and purebred adoption programs.

The Bay Colony Dog Spectacular will run from 8am to 5pm, Thursday, December 4 through Sunday, December 7, at the Bayside Exposition Center (exit 15 off the Southeast Expressway, Route 93 South). Admission is $8 for adults, $4 for children and $5 for seniors, and tickets are available at the door.

For more event information, call the Bayside Exposition Center at 617-825-5151. (Note: after December 1st, call 617-474-6311 for event information.)

MOVIES

BRUCE WILLIS STARS AS THE JACKAL, a ruthless assassin hired to eliminate someone at the top of the U.S. Government.

The Jackal: A loose remake of the 1973 thriller, The Day of the Jackal, this has its moments, but never quite enthralls.

Richard Gere is the Irish terrorist released from prison to help the FBI locate a ruthless, international hit man, played by Bruce Willis. Gere is one of the few people who has ever seen the Jackal, and seems to know his tricks.

A sticking point, however, is that the FBI has almost no idea how the Jackal maintains his anonymity, and follows Gere as though he had all the answers. This thin justification for releasing him from prison is a nagging problem throughout the film. Another is that, while we do learn why Gere despises the Jackal, it is not clear why his hatred is so vehemently returned.

There are, however, a few edgy scenes and a rich performance from Diane Venora as a Russian army major who serves as the story's moral center. Sidney Poitier is always a treat, though he is offered no great challenges as an FBI agent.

Gere is as photogenic as ever, and does a decent job of maintaining an Irish accent, but this is Willis' picture. He looks creepy and dangerous in his various disguises and walks away with every scene in which he glares menacingly or slyly smirks at his prey.

Rated R  1/2

Starship Troopers: Those of us who like big bug movies will be in their glory with this futuristic, campy adventure.

It is set sometime in the future when the world is at intergalactic war with a race of giant insect aliens. A cast of mostly unknowns and a few recognizable character actors mobilize our vastly populated planet into a spoof of old World War II flicks. Some of this is tongue in cheek, but not at the sacrifice of action sequences so violent the squeamish should consider themselves forewarned.

The acting is a problem, as none of the stars leave a positive impression. Director Paul Verhoeven culls much better performances from his more seasoned support cast, especially Michael Ironside. True, the cast took second place to the bugs, but Dina Meyer and Casper Van Dien, as the picture perfect leads, were about as convincing as Barbie and Ken.

Verhoeven, now somewhat forgiven for Showgirls, failed to maintain even a semblance of even pacing, but keeps our attention through humor and special effects that are amazing for their scope and originality. Rated R  1/2.

Mad City: This is a movie so well intentioned that you really want to like it. Its simplistic message and rehashing of old ideas keep you from completely buying into it. Director Costa-Gavras maintains an edgy action as he builds a case for media manipulation, with Dustin Hoffman as the Machiavellian TV reporter and John Travolta the working class stiff who has flipped his lid. There is just very little here we have not seen before. Rated PG-13 1/2

Woodchips

ANTHONY MANCONI

Mr. Smith, an insurance company resident hired a new secretary who came here recently from London, England. Tony Stack called and asked to speak with Mr. Smith. "I'm sorry sir," the secretary told him, "Mr. Smith has gone to the 'United Kingdom.' Oh! my condolences Ma'am, Tony replied, "Is it too late to send flowers?"

My Aunt Nora hates Woodchips. She told me she is going to send a letter to Dick Haggerty (My Editor) and tell him to fire me. She wrote the letter but never sent it because she said, "I don't want to start a fight with anyone who buys, 'INK' by the 'Barrel!'"

I heard the Nudists take, "Bare-Aspirins" when they have headaches.

Aristotle said, "We can avoid 'Criticism' by 'SAYING' nothing - 'Doing' nothing and, 'Being nothing.'"

Folks, I've found that SOME members of the, "Upper Crust Society" are "Crums" with a lot of "dough!"

The most common name in America is John Smith. The most common letters are I.O.U.s.

Kathy doesn't believe in TV Commercials. She told me, "We've had the same neighbors for over 20 years and not once did any one of them come over and tell me that her 'detergent' is better than the one I use."

I told Helen Porter at the post office, 'you don't have to stand in line to purchase stamps, there's a stamp machine in the lobby.' "Yes I know Chipper," she said, "BUT, the machine doesn't ask me about my Arthritis."

Kathy and I are having a party and I called and invited Jimmy Quinno to come over. "Chipper, do I have to dress up?" Jimmy asked, "Not if you're a 'NUDIST' I replied.

Blackie Vega told the doctor, "when I got up this morning I looked in the mirror and I looked awful, what's wrong with me Doc?" "Nothing," the doctor said, "your eyesight is PERFECT!"

I have this saying over my desk, "One ship sails East another sails West with the self same wind that blows. It's the set of the sails and NOT the Gale's that tell you the way to go." Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

DREAMBOAT of the week is, Michele Naehle of STONEHAM and SUPERSTAR is Ira Leonard of WINCHESTER.

WOW! Have you noticed how everything has gone up in price? Shoes, $79 and up, for one shoe two for $150, suits for $300 with one pair of pants. There's no sense getting a second pair the suit jacket will wear out before you can use it. Even the price of food has gone up, Pumpnickel Bread has gone up a dime. And, Bikinis, the more they show the MORE they cost. Esther Williams was right when she said, "Most bikinis are two Dixie Cups and a Bandaid."

My friend Sid Levine from Chelsea gave up being a "Stand-up" Comedian. He tells his jokes sitting down now he's much less of a target that way.

Dennis Tully introduced his girl-friend to his rich uncle. Now, she's his rich Aunt.

Family reunions are in again

A new trend is emerging: the return to the family reunion. It's a time to rediscover long-lost family memories and traditions and to create some new ones. And what better time to hold a family gathering than during the glorious days of summer.

To guarantee a successful reunion, first find a location convenient for the entire family, like a public park or picnic area in a central location. Then, so the burden isn't on a few select people, delegate specific duties to various family members. Have someone prepare the food while another individual plans activities such as a scavenger hunt, canoe races or family trivia challenge. To better preserve the memories, you'll also want to elect someone-probably yourself-to operate the camcorder.

"To make sure the day

Diane Higden said to her husband Wayne, "why are you so tired?" Wayne slumped down in an easy chair moaned, "I installed a new muffler on the car and I'M Exhausted!"

When I married Kathy, her father sent me a "Thank You" Note.

Many of you, (I am sure) remember when almost every city and town had a three or four-piece band They played at weddings, christenings and any festive occasion. The one Kathy and I remember fondly was, "Joe Elastic" and his "RUBBER BAND." It was famous for its "SNAPPY" tunes that made us "SPRING" up off our seats, "STRETCH" our legs and start DANCING.

Bank President Jim McCarthy was interviewing a prospective cashier. "I've been in 'YALE' for the last four years." "WOW!" Jim said to himself, those are wonderful credentials. Then Jim asked, "what is our name?" The man smiled and replied, "YIMMY YONHSON." (He didn't get the job).

becomes a permanent part of your family history, make a 'family album' on video. It's easily edited and shared by those who want a copy. Give copies to everyone who came to the reunion-send more to others that just couldn't make it," says Bill Mannion, general manager for Panasonic Camcorders.

But before you press the record button, keep in mind the following tips:

The day will have a basic flow (e.g. mingling, games or contests, eating, etc.), so you should arm yourself with a plan of attack.

When taping, set your camcorder to SP mode for the best quality video.

As you follow people around throughout the day, take the "jitter" out of your video by using the Digital Electronic Image Stabilization (DEIS) feature found on some Panasonic models.

Always view what you're taping as a work-in-progress. Be sure to take shots that may or may not end up in the finished product you can always cut out anything unnecessary, but you can't go back for more once the gathering is over.

Use special effects such as digital fade, strobe and mirror, sparingly. While it may be tempting to overuse them, they get old fast.

Making smooth transitions from one pint in the video to the next can often be difficult. Focus on a subject for at least 10 seconds, then, when moving on to your next shot, move the camcorder slowly, avoiding jerky movements. Start taping slightly before and stop a little after your desired shots.

Try to limit the narration. Instead of providing the dialogue for our subjects, let them tell the story through their words and actions.

"In addition to talking-head interviews, follow a lively relative around as he or she tries to amuse everyone with a never-ending stream of jokes," says Mannion. But don't let one person have all the fun. Try to coax out the most bashful of the relatives.

When interviewing family members, ask interesting, probing questions don't put your subject on the spot by uttering the infamous "Hi" when turning the camcorder on them and expect a very interesting response.

Perhaps the most entertaining subjects are children, who are almost certain to do something unexpected or inappropriate. When taping these miniature marvels, don't make the video seem like something out of Gulliver's Travels. "Get down to their level by filming from a low angle.

And, if the sun starts to go down, don't despair. Features such as the Color Enhancement light available on several Panasonic models come on instinctively when natural light diminishes.

Bottled Water Consumption Reaches All-Time High

Source: Beverage Marketing Corporation, Bottled Water in the U.S., 1997 Edition

Up 7%

Increase in bottled water sales locally

The International Bottled Water Association (IBWA) announced today that sales of bottled water in Massachusetts jumped 7% in 1996, reaching an all time high of 94 million gallons. In addition, per capita consumption increased to 15.5 gallons—significantly higher than the national average. Industry experts attribute much of this growth to the fact that consumers are looking for healthy beverage choices, and as a result are turning to bottled water.

"It doesn't surprise me that consumers are drinking more bottled water as an alternative to other beverages," remarked Felicia Busch, R.D. "With the nation's focus on health and nutrition, more people are paying attention to what they eat and drink. Bottled water is a safe, healthy alternative to other types of beverages that might contain sugar, caffeine and /or alcohol."

Auto recycling for Special Olympics

The leaves are starting to pile up. In order to make yard clean-up easier, Massachusetts Special Olympics announced today that it's "Recycle for Gold" program will remove unwanted vehicles, in any condition, from Bay State residents property free of charge.

According to the program's director, Robert Midgley,

"Recycle for Gold gives us a great opportunity to provide a service to the community, while at the same time helping raise part of the funds necessary to provide year round athletic competition and training for over 12,000 Special Olympians in Massachusetts."

"Recycle for Gold" is a unique program which allows

Massachusetts residents to have junk cars removed, free of charge, by simply making a phone call. Once the vehicle is towed away it is completely recycled right down to the gas, oil and anti-freeze. This results in cash for Massachusetts Special Olympics. According to Midgley, "Everyone is a winner with Recycle for Gold." The donor benefits by having their unwanted vehicle removed in time to make yard clean up a little easier and may also be eligible for a tax deduction. The environment benefits by being spared the harmful effects of improperly disposed of vehicles. Most importantly the over 12,000 Special Athletes in Massachusetts benefit from the money being raised.

To have your vehicle removed before the leaves start falling call 1-800-590-1600, available 24 hours a day. Free towing is available statewide.

Massachusetts Special Olympics provides year-round sports training and competition for people with mental retardation.

Middlesex leads in businesses

Middlesex County was home to 39,745 businesses with employees, the most of any county in the state in 1995, according to new tabulations released today on the Internet by the Commerce Department's Census bureau.

"These data are useful to businesses and other users that analyze market potential, determine location and size of sales territories and profile business trends geographically," said Census Bureau analyst Dennis Wagner.

Suffolk county was second with 19,136 businesses, followed by Norfolk County with 18,041, Essex County with 16,763 and Worcester County with 16,387.

The numbers of employees in each of the five counties were as follows: Middlesex (734,997), Suffolk (511,455), Norfolk (292,097), Essex (251,278) and Worcester (270,856).

The 1994 and 1995 annual payrolls (in thousands of dollars) for the top five counties were:

County	1994 Payroll	1995 Payroll
Middlesex	$22,681,970	$24,281,666
Suffolk	$17,268,645	$18,659,538
Norfolk	$8,321,943	$10,910,450
Essex	$6,571,168	$7,184,686
Worcester	$6,897,667	$7,228,793

The number of businesses in the state totaled 160,350 in 1995, an increase of 2,278 from 1994. Payroll for the state went up 7.9 percent, from $77.3 billion in 1994 to $83.4 billion in 1995.

The services sector employed the largest portion of the state's private-sector work force (40.9 percent), with an average annual payroll per employee of $28,722.

The report, 1995 county Business Patterns, provides data by detailed industry in nine major economic divisions: agri-

The House of the Week

Stately Home Has Grace

G-72

IN FROM THE FRONT PORCH, the two-story foyer leads to the living room ahead and the dining room to the right. French doors in the living room lead out to a rear porch. The island kitchen is well situated between the dining room and the eating nook. A short hallway nearby provides access to the utility room and the two-car garage. The private master suite is across the home. The upper floor has three bedrooms, a split bath and a balcony hall that leads to another porch.

Plan G-72 by Homestyles designers Network transforms 2,605 square feet of living space into a stately home with the grace and elegance of days gone by.

The magic continues inside, with a soaring 19-foot ceiling in the foyer. Just steps away, the large living room features a fireplace and a built-in bookshelf. French doors lead to a secluded covered porch. Holiday meals will take on special meaning in the formal dining room, which overlooks the front porch.

Just steps away, an exposed beam ceiling is an appealing feature of the kitchen, as is the handy work island. The adjoining eating nook is ideal for casual meals.

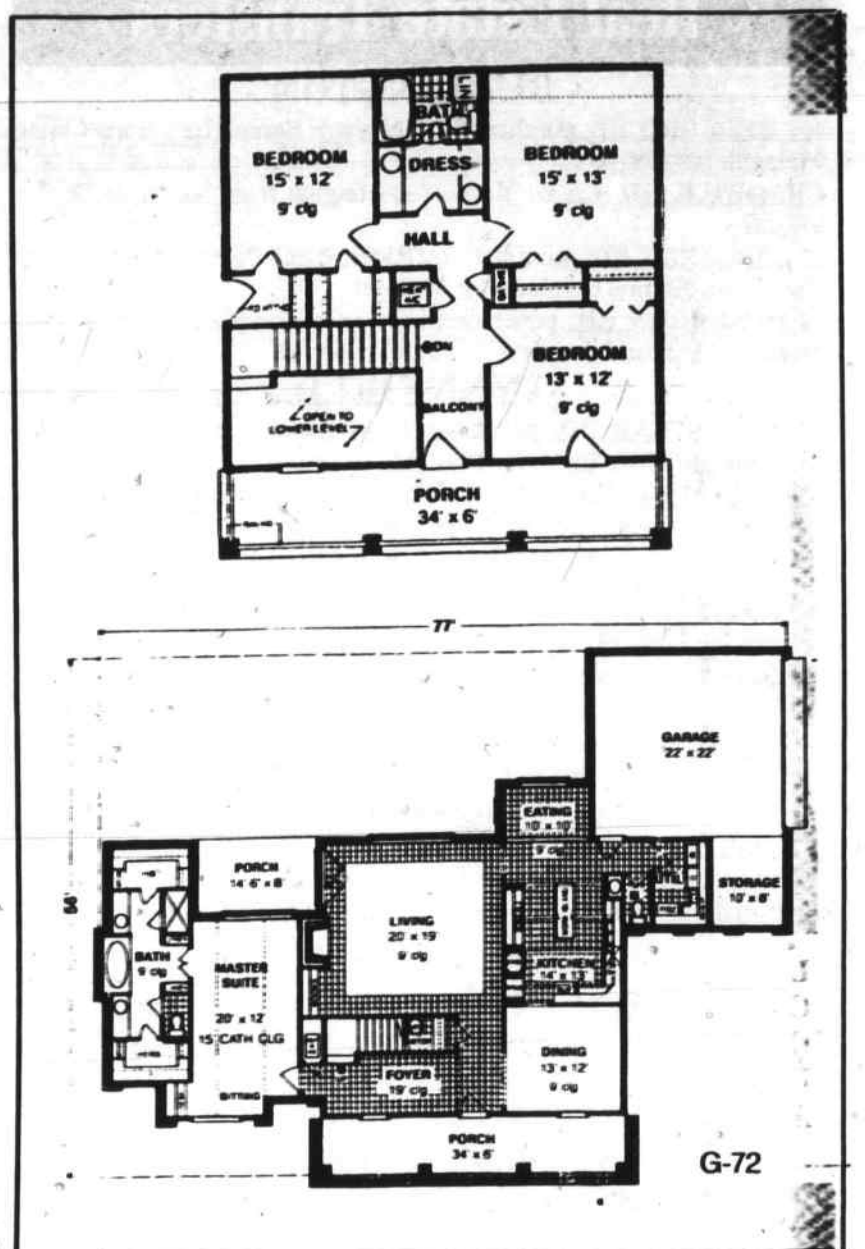

The private, isolated master suite has a 15-foot cathedral ceiling and a boxed-out sitting area with a built-in desk. Double doors introduce the luxurious bath which contains an oval tub, separate shower, his-and hers walk-in closets and dual sinks.

All other main-floor rooms have 9 foot ceilings.

Upstairs, a balcony hall connects three large bedrooms and a compartmentalized bath to a wide porch in front. Each of the bedrooms has a 9 foot ceiling.

G-72 Statistics

Design G-72 has a foyer, living room, dining room, kitchen, eating nook, four bedrooms, two and one half baths and a utility room, totaling 2,605 square feet of living space. This plan includes a standard basement, crawlspace or slab foundation, and 2x6 exterior wall framing. The two-car garage and adjacent storage area provide 569 square feet of additional space.

School Notes

by Phyllis Nissen

The good news and the bad news?

'Better communication all around'

"High School Principal Robert Norton believes better communication with parents and a very good all-around program has led to the lowest number of eighth grade students leaving for parochial schools in recent memory," notes the

Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"We had the lowest number of kids that we've had since I've been here going to parochial school," said Norton.

"Norton said the high school lost only 12 students from last year's eighth grades at the Joyce and Kennedy middle schools (figures from St. Charles are not included).

"He said a few students went to Arlington Catholic, a traditional strong draw, one or two to Austin Prep, one or two to St. John's Prep, and one to Lexington Christian Academy.

"He noted the number of students leaving has been steadily declining.

"Last year, he said, 20 Woburn students graduated from Arlington Catholic alone; those students started as freshmen the first year he came on board (although this figure would include students who moved on from St. Charles).

"Since then, Norton and other administrators made retaining Woburn students a priority, noting especially that those considering private school tend to be achievers and leaders, who are an important part of the mix at any high school, helping as role models to other students and contributing to the school culture..."

Powerful learning in Lynnfield

"As I was helping a student use the Choice Board on the second day of school, I was struck once again by what an important learning tool it is and how easily and naturally it enables children to learn social, language and math skills at their level," notes Cathy Szymanski in Lynnfield's "Summer Street Newsletter."

"The Choice Board (or similar organizational device) is a chart with picture and word labels to represent the various learning centers in the classroom (Art, Writing, Blocks, Science, etc.) Included on the label is a number representing the maximum number of children who may work in a given area at one time. Beside or under each label is space for children to 'sign up' for each center using their individual name tags. At the beginning of

PETER and BEVERLY (HOLMES) SEIBOLD of Reading, announce the birth of their daughter, Caroline Hope, on September 23, 1997 at the Winchester Hospital. Caroline joins her siblings, Michael and Danielle, age 1.

Grandparent honors are extended to Mr. and Mrs. William Holmes of Reading and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Seibold of Stoneham.

Great grandparent honors are extended to Mr. Louis Froio of Melrose.

DAVID V. and ANNETTE MARIE (DAUPHINEE) MARCHANT of Melrose, announce the birth of their son, Jacob Francis, on October 20, 1997 at the Melrose Wakefield Hospital.

Grandparent honors are extended to Robert A. and Barbara A. Dauphinee of Reading, and Vincent H. and Nancy L. Marchant of Brunswick Maine, formerly of Reading.

Choice Time children use the board to make their initial selections and then throughout the period, they come back to the Choice Board when they are ready to move on to another activity.

"John's first task on Thursday was to find his name tag (printed with an initial capital letter and lowercase letters arranged in a row with other names beginning with J). Next he had to figure out which picture-word label corresponded to the table where children were using play dough (the Art Center). 'Can I go there?' he asked me. 'Let's see. How many children can go there altogether?' I asked him. 'Six,' he responded, looking at the number 6 on the Art Center label. 'Right. And how many children are there?' I asked. 'Four,' he replied, after carefully counting up the four name tags beside the label. 'So how many more children could go there?' I probed. John thought a moment, counted out six fingers, took four away, smiled and answered 'Two!' In a flash he placed his name beside the other four and he was off!"

Smokeout scheduled

"If ever there was a teachable moment...a teachable 24 hours, it is the Great American Smokeout," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"On Thursday, Nov. 20, all across America students will be participating in events and classroom lessons addressing the health risks of using tobacco and tobacco products.

"This year, the Burlington Public Schools will acknowledge the day through various activities....For additional information about smoking cessation programs contact Debbie Hanna, Burlington public health nurse and the town tobacco control specialist at 781-270-1955 or the local branch of the American Cancer Society at 617-643-3010 or the American Lung Association at 781-272-2866.
